The Unimaginable Failure, Says Mr. Coolidge

Low Prices? Not in France

What Will Mr. Smith Do?

By Arthur Brisbane

THE GIANT BRITISH airship R-100, flying over the sea, above the clouds at 60 miles an hour, is expected to land in Canada this afternoon.

A few years ago the average man could not have imagined that. Now that it has happened, not one in a hundred realizes what it means.

Long after steam railroads were operating successfully in England, wise men, in and out of Parliament, said the locomotive could not possibly be a success.

Mr. Coolidge says the farm board effort to hold up the price of wheat and cotton is a failure.

Europe's cartel couldn't maintain steel prices, our government failed in its effort to stabilize silver, the British couldn't corner rubber, or Brazil, coffee, and Cuba failed with sugar.

It is not possible to repeal the law of supply and demand, cause and effect, action and reaction, says Mr. Coolidge.

And he adds, which will interest wets and drys, "an act of Congress has small jurisdiction over what men think."

What does Mr. Coolidge, himself a total abstainer, think about the Volstead act?

Can it control "what men think"? Can it really control what men DRINK?

While Mr. Coolidge was writing his "piece" about the farm board failure, for Wednesday's newspapers, wheat was dropping to a new "lowest price," cotton to its year's lowest price, and raw sugar to the lowest price in 70 years. It is hard to fight the law of supply and demand.

Refined sugar held its price, 4.70 a pound, and will probably drop soon. This is the time to put up preserves.

Seven years ago they sold for $84.

France, another country that you should not sell short, may well be proud when her Minister of Commerce Flandin can say:

"There is practically no unemployment here, in France, while in Germany, Great Britain and the United States more than 9,000,000 persons are out of work. Our purchases of raw materials since the first of this year exceed by more than 2,500,000 tons similar purchases in the same period last year."

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, busy erecting a building 102 stories high, in New York, ever since he erected his tower of 15,000,000 Democratic votes in 1928, will soon dip back into politics.

He will attend the New York State Democratic convention, make some speeches for Governor Roosevelt, whom he nominated in 1928, and take part in the Democratic congressional campaign.

Politicians assume he will be a candidate again in 1932. That would seem reasonable. Bryan had more than one chance, and his biggest vote was only about half of Smith's.

Friends of Mr. Smith, however, predict that he will not run in 1932, but will support and put in nomination his friend, Owen D. Young.

If that happens it will make Republicans thoughtful.

The "outboard motor" idea, used for years on little boats, is successfully applied to the air.

Myrten Johnson, from Oakland's field, in a glider with a 30-horsepower engine attached, went up 14,500 feet. Boys and young men will want to experiment with that.

John MacDonald, years ago, swore that Tom Mooney and Billings were responsible for a bomb that destroyed many lives. Now he swears his original testimony was perjury. If he is telling the truth this time, Mooney and Billings will, of course, be set free.

How are the seven justices of California's Supreme Court to know whether MacDonald was lying then, or lying now? Knowledge of human nature may help. One thing is certain, MacDonald committed perjury, then or now. The governor and the judges might well hesitate to keep men in jail on his testimony.

U.S. IN WAR ON BOSTON'S RUM KINGS

Federal Men Scan Bank Accounts, Hunt "Rap Takers," Raid Liquor Radio Plant

A drive to "mop up" Boston end big bootleg operations and cut off the liquor supply at its source was launched here today by Federal prohibition agents on orders from Washington.

Four separate moves were made locally in a new campaign of federal enforcement directed at "the big fellows." They were:

1. Check by federal agents of all Suffolk county court cases involving the continuance or final disposition of charges against rum runners and bootleggers.

2. Check of the bank accounts of all known and suspected bootleggers by an internal revenue agent sent from Washington.

3. Raid on a downtown hotel room where rum ring operators were directing the movement of vessels on rum row with a low wave radio set.

HUNT RAP TAKERS

4. Seizure of a truckload of fancy liquors, hundreds of gallons of wine and a quantity of ale and discovery of a liquor-cutting plant in two West End raids.

From the court records being scrutinized, federal authorities expected to determine whether the "take-the-rap" policy is generally in vogue and whether any collusion still exists between big bootleg operators and police.

The indictment by federal Grand Jury of several men prominent in local large-scale bootlegging circles is expected as a result of the scrutiny being made of bank accounts. Arrests will be based upon evasion of the income tax.

HUGE RUM TAX DUES.

In this connection it was reported that one man whose name has never figured in court in connection with rum charges was found to have amassed by rum a fortune upon which he owes a total tax of $750,000. Evidence against him and others will probably be presented to the federal Grand Jury in September.

Boston became the target for prohibition enforcement's big guns even as the nation's dry administrators, including Rev. Jonathan Lewis for New England and John S. Smith for Massachusetts, were being told by Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock at Washington that federal agents must stop wasting time on "picayunish" cases.

The Boston drive, resulting in two arrests, was begun under the direction of Acting Administrator Henry E. Goodnough and Field Agent Dennis T. Lordan.

Most significant in the new campaign was the Boston hotel raid where the radio set was seized.

Fish Spoil Society Fete

Thousands of dead fish, chased ashore by larger fish near Manchester, ruined a pretentious water fete planned by junior members of North Shore society Wednesday, it was learned today.

Water sports are an annual feature of the Manchester Yacht Club fete, and juniors disport in fancy costumes. This year, for the fourth time in eight years the big fish chased the smaller fry to their doom.

Heaps of dead fish along the shore circle drove bathers from the vicinity. Steps have been taken to cleanse the beaches.

Leaving Newport this morning, the big dirigible soared over Massachusetts, crossed Massachusetts bay and appeared over Beverly at 12:40, daylight time, headed for Gloucester, and went as far north as Portland. She then swung inland and retraced her course to Newport, being due at sunset.

DIVERS ON WAY TO SUNKEN PINTHIS

Two Will Be Ready to Start Work Recovering Bodies of Victims Tomorrow

Two deep-sea divers and a wrecking tug were en route today for Scituate in response to the public demand, sponsored by the Boston Evening American, that efforts be made at once to recover the bodies of 17 men believed entombed in the torn steel hull of the sunken tanker, Pinthis.

Diving operations will start tomorrow and the first of the bodies of the men left to moulder on the sea bottom since the Fairfax-Pinthis disaster of June 10 should be recovered by tomorrow night.

While a host of congratulatory messages from public officials and families of the victims was reaching the Boston American this morning, the tug Cricket of the Merritt-Chapman & Scott Corp., sailed from New London for the scene.

The lessees of the tanker, and the Merchants & Miners line, owners of the Fairfax, which sunk the Pinthis with a loss of 49 lives, will finance the attempt to recov-

R-100 ARRIVAL SET FOR 8 P. M. AT MONTREAL

British Dirigible's Commander Radios Message Direct to St. Hubert Airport

St. Hubert Airport, Que., July 31—The R-100 commander wireless this afternoon that he expected to arrive here at 7 p. m., E. S. T., tonight (8 p. m. Boston daylight saving time).

On the basis of earlier information it had been expected the airliner would arrive between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The signal service here reported the position of the R-100 at 11:15 Boston daylight time as over Pointe Des Monts, on the north shore of the St. Lawrence river and approximately 600 miles from Montreal.

At 1 p. m. she passed Father Point, 175 east of Quebec.

A message from the airship timed 7 a. m. (8 a. m. Boston daylight time), said she was 500 miles from Montreal, flying at a height of 1200 feet and averaging 35 miles an hour since 1 a. m. (2 a. m. Boston time).

She passed over the liner Empress of Scotland at 8:30 (E. S. T.) 9:30 Boston time, off Mt. St. Louis Bay, 300 miles from Quebec city, and was then following the south shore of the St. Lawrence river.

She had met a head wind of about 22 miles an hour, but all other weather conditions were favorable, clear and cool.

At 12:25 a. m., standard time (1:25 Boston time), the airliner passed over the steamship Duchess of York in the Gulf of St. Lawrence after having skirted the Island of Anticosti.

A radio message from the airship to the Duchess of York said: "Everything O. K. Making about 70 knots ground speed;

BANKRUPTCY SUIT AGAINST STATE ST. FIRM

An Involuntary Petition Lists Dowling, Swain & Shea Assets as Only $60,592

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy with liabilities listed at $1,699,601, was filed with the clerk of the U. S. court today by creditors of Dowling, Swain & Shea, State st. brokers. Assets were placed at $60,592.

There are 20 claims, secured by collateral, amounting to $932,161 and 150 unsecured claims totalling $237,204. Among the secured creditors are the National American Securities Co., with a claim of $596,554; the National Shawmut Bank of Boston, claim of $43,585; Boston Five Cent Savings Bank, $66,645; Federal National Bank, Boston, $46,000; Old Colony Trust Co., $12,200; Continental National Bank, Boston, $25,200, and First National Corp., $19,012.

The company is understood to deal in unlisted investment securities, and with other Boston houses has participated in distributing various bond issues, public utilities and industrial stocks.

Calling of loans by banks is said to have caused court proceedings.

The company was originally established in 1920 and was a partnership of M. J. Dowling, Herbert J. Swain and John J. Shea. Dowling is said to have withdrawn from the firm and the present company was formed, with Shea as president and Swain as treasurer. The company also maintains a branch office in Manchester, N. H.

Both Shea and Swain were formerly connected with Hollister, White & Co., which failed, but are understood to have severed connections with that firm before its failure.

Society Widow Loses $30,000 in Stock Deal

A wealthy society woman, widow of a prominent State official, is the latest victim of stock swindling in Boston, it was revealed today as an investigation of the Aco Mining Co. was begun by the Attorney-General's office.

The wealthy widow was "taken" for $30,000 through the salesmanship of a handsome, blond young man introduced to her as a star Yale athlete at a proper social function.

Rosy promises were made the society widow, but they failed to materialize. Then, in an attempt to recover her $30,000 "investment," she, as did others, engaged counsel.

Eventually the handsome blond salesman was driven into effecting a settlement which the society woman, of necessity, pronounced satisfactory.

According to the attorney-general's office, the Aco Mining Co. reaped a harvest in Greater Boston and Massachusetts peddling stock to baseball players, automobile agents, doctors, lawyers and society women.

Developments in the Boston Evening American's stock exposé have come in rapid succession in the past two days with the issuance of warrants against eight salesmen who exploited the stock of three questionable companies, the probe of the Aco Co. and announcement today that a stop order had been issued against the West India Fruit Co., with offices at No. 1 State st.

The order banning further sale of stock by the West India Fruit Co. followed an investigation by the securities division of the Department of Public Utilities. The fraud order was signed by Director John C. Hull. The company like the Aco Mining Co. failed to file the proper information as to its status.

BOSTON SLOOP GOES AGROUND

Saco, Me., July 31 (AP)—The 30-foot auxiliary sloop Julianar, owned by Dr. W. C. Egloff, Boston, went aground on a breakwater in the Saco river at high tide today.

Ebbing of the tide permitted the boat to slide and tore a hole in the bottom.

ASKS $100,000 IN BABY TANGLE

Chicago, July 31 (USA)—Damages of $100,000 are asked of the Englewood hospital by Mrs. Margaret Watkins for "mental anguish" suffered in the Bamberger-Watkins baby mix-up.

Suit was filed by Atty. Ronald C. Oldman, who declared in his bill that the hospital "so negligently and carelessly handled the infant and another male child that they became so mixed that the identities of the two babies became lost."

This was the second suit filed in the case. One was started yesterday asking the Circuit Court to take judicial notice of the mix-up and consider the evidence available for the purpose of legally establishing the infants' respective indentities.

The name of William Watkins, the father, was omitted from the second suit because of the doubt cast on the legality of his marriage by the appearance of a first wife in Philadelphia. She denied that Watkins ever procured a divorce from her. He insists he did.

Report Douglass "Very Comfortable"

Although his name is still on the danger list, ex-Congressman John J. Douglass is reported as resting "very comfortable" today at the City Hospital. He was stricken with two pulmonary hemorrhages 12 days ago at his Boston home and was removed to the East Boston relief station. Later he was transferred to the City Hospital.

AMERICAN PRAISED

Statements, letters and telegrams lauding the success of the Boston American's drive for action included messages from Mayor Edward Talbot of Fall River, where most of the Pinthis victims resided; Sen. David I. Walsh, who made an appeal for the navy to do the work; Mayor James M. Curley, Congressman John W. McCormack and Mrs. Lewis Hughes of Maple st., Fall river, whose son and brother died in the Fairfax-Pinthis crash.

Mayor Talbot of Fall River said:

"I am greatly pleased at the news of the sending of divers to the scene of the Pinthis disaster for the recovery of the bodies of the unfortunate men, who lost their lives there.

"Through the action of the Boston Evening American the desired result has been attained.

SENATOR WALSH PLEASED

Senator David I Walsh: "I am greatly pleased at the news that divers are being sent to recover the bodies of the Pinthis crew.

"I think the action of the owners of the Fairfax and the lessees of the Pinthis is highly commendable in view of the fact that appeals to other agencies were unsatisfactory.

"I am particularly grateful that the press, especially the Boston Evening American, took such commendable action in urging this matter on the public attention."

Congressman John W. McCormack, of Boston: "I am particularly pleased at the news that divers have been sent by the owners and lessees of the two vessels to recover the bodies of the ill-fated men who went down with the Pinthis.

"The Boston Evening American is to be congratulated for creating and molding public opinion, which exerted its influence so strongly that this important and humane action was accomplished."

CURLEY AROUSED

Mayor Curley caustically scored the government agencies and "certain officials and authorities" for the apparent lack of power to act in the raising of the bodies, in his letter of congratulation to this newspaper.

Mrs. Hughes, in her letter to this paper, voices the sentiments of all relatives whose loved ones are locked in the sunken tanker. Her letter follows:

"I appreciate very much the work done by the Boston Evening American concerning the getting of someone to raise the body of my son and others from the wreck of the tanker Pinthis.

"The body of my brother, Capt. Albert V. Jones, was brought back to this city (Fall River), and is buried in the family lot.

"I would like to be able to place the body of my son in the same resting place with his captain's.

Capt. Jones' body was one of the two recovered the day of the collision. The other was that of a mate.

Congressman Charles L. Gifford, whose district includes Scituate, off which the disaster occurred, said:

"I am extremely pleased to learn the owners and lessees of the Fairfax and the Pinthis have taken notice of the insistent demands for action to recover the entombed bodies of the Pinthis crew as made through the editorial and news columns of the Boston Evening American."

VICTIMS OF HUB LAWYER SEEK HIS PARDON

Women Appéal to Allen in Behalf of Sick Man in the Prison Hospital

A wreck of his former self—sleeping not more than one hour each night—Francis M. Phelan, former Boston lawyer, lies on a cot at the State prison hospital.

And today the women victims of his trickery, the Catholic chaplain of the prison and the prison physician asked Governor Allen to pardon him.

The appeal was made before the State advisory board of pardons at State prison this morning. Among those appearing in his behalf was Mrs. Irene Fountain of Jamaica Plain, from whom he stole $1500—a larceny for which he received in 1927 a sentence of from three to five years in prison.

Two others appearing were Mrs. Elvira Reggie of Roxbury and Flore Zasano of Medford, victims of Phelans' theft of $16,433 from the estate of Rosa K. Reggie—for which he received an additional five-year sentence.

Rev. Ralph W. Farrell, Catholic chaplain, and Dr. McLoughlin, prison physician, were the principal spokesmen in behalf of Phelan.

"There has been sufficient punishment in this case," Fr. Farrell told the board. "Society need hav eno further fear and his wife and family should suffer no longer."

Phelan was a membber of the Massachusetts bar 32 years. . . . . Dr. McLoughlin told the board never before in his 40 years of service at the prison had he appeared as a petitioner for a prisoner. mmm .N.—HT MHMH HT HTH

Phelan, he said, is bordering on hysteria, able to sleep but an hour each night, suffering agonizing pain across his chest and back.

KILTIES ON GUARD

Elaborate arrangements were made at the airport for the arrival. A tall mooring tower, with movable arm cables and winches, was carefully tested.

A small army of soldiers and police was encamped within the airport enclosure to guard the R-100 and handle the crowds gathered to view the arrival. The soldiers included many from the famous Black Watch of Canada that recently visited Boston.

A small army of newspapermen and photographers is present from all parts of Canada and the United States. Nearly 40 special telegraph wires had been cut in for them. Radio amplifers were put up at various strategic points around the field.

MANY U. S. VISITORS

Special trains were being run over the Canadian National Railways from Montreal to the airport. A special railroad station was erected to take care of the traffic here.

Hotel and other living accommodations in Montreal and near the airport were at a premium. Many Americans are here for the big celebration.

The official reception for the officers and crew will not take place until tomorrow. This will give a number of dignitaries from outlying points in Canada and the United States an opportunity to reach Montreal.

The R-100 left Cardington, Eng., at 10:45 p. m. Boston time, Monday, and at 10:39 p. m. last night made its landfall at Belle Isle, having traveled 2278 miles, most of it over the ocean, in a few minutes less than 45 hours.

Its course from Belle Isle to the airport here, 948 miles, lay over the straits of Belle Isle and the gulf up the St. Lawrence river and over the city of Quebec to Montreal and St. Hubert.

SAFE BREAKERS IN 3 HAULS, GET $238

Medford Strong-Box Yields $156; Blue Hill Job Mystifies Hub Police

Thieves smashed open three safes in Greater Boston during the night, getting a total of $238 in loot, while a gang of five men was frightened away in the midst of an attempt to blow open the safe in a fourth place.

Two of the robberies, one in Medford and the other in the Maplewood district of Malden, are believed to have been committed by the same gang.

At the Massachusetts Cement Block Co., 909 Fellsway, Medford, where entrance was gained by forcing a rear window and an office door, $156 was secured. The safe in the Maplewood depot of the Boston & Maine Railroad was robbed of $57. Fingerprints on the two safes are being compared.

Boston police were mystified as to how access was gained to the Grove Hall Chevrolet Co. at 406 Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, where a 400-pound safe was tipped over and the door ripped off. About $25 was stolen.

There were no marks on the outer doors and police believe a skeleton key was used. The safe was in a back office.

A more expert type of safe break than any of these was attempted at the Cambridge station of the Boston & Maine, but this effort failed. Holes had been drilled preparatory to blowing the safe open when a train arrived and five men were seen fleeing from the scene. There was only $36 in this safe.

U. S. LAUNCHES HUB RUM WAR

Boston headquarters has been concerning for some weeks with a return of ships to rum row off the Massachusetts coast, ones completely broken up.

Movements of the ships indicated that some were being controlled by wireless from Boston or were reporting by wireless to a Boston headquarters. The trail led finally to the hotel guest room, but when the raiders arrived they found occupants of the room had hurriedly checked out a few hours before.

A radio set equipped with low wave adapter was still there, indicating that code messages on low wave length were being received from rum ships. As the re-establishment of communications headquarters has easily accomplished, officials are greatly chagrined at their failure to apprehend anyone in the room.

The West End raids were made in Cussen pl. and South Margin st.

The work of the agents attracted such large crowds that police were called to preserve order. James Greatovex was arrested at the Cussen pl. house, where the cutting plant was unearthed, and John D. Camelopoulis of West Cedar st. was taken into custody at the South Margin st. house, where most of the liquor was seized.

In New York, what prohibition agents described as the biggest raid since prohibition netted a brewery and safe valued at $1,500,000. The property consisted of the North American Brewery and the Palm Garden Cafe in Brooklyn. The brewery is one of the largest in the country. The raid was made without a warrant.

The new program of enforcement shaped at Washington since July 1 will confine federal activities to the "big fellows" almost exclusively and includes a national survey of the extent and kind of drinking being done.

Director Woodcock said the survey would serve not only as a measuring stick of enforcement progress, but as a guide for public opinion regarding prohibition effects, as well.

Daily reports to Washington from 87 deputy administrators will be made under the new program which includes also a training school for dry agents where they will be taught to shoot only in self defense, new efforts to promote State co-operation, special attention to graft and collusion by 200 trained men and a campaign for uniformity of dry law sentences.

Mayor Commends American's Fight

CITY OF BOSTON
CITY HALL

JAMES M. CURLEY
Mayor

To the Editor,
The Boston American,
Boston, Massachusetts.

Dear Sir:-

The Boston American Publishing Company is to be congratulated on its humane endeavor to arouse the Federal authorities to a sense of Christian duty in the matter of the sinking of the Tanker Pinthis. It is to be regretted that, in the minds of certain officials and authorities, the entire Constitution of the United States, and all of the amendments are meaningless with the exception of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Persons living along the coast of the United States, prior to the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment, always demonstrated a real pride in the United States Coast Guard Service, the members of which never hesitated to risk their lives in times of storms at sea that a human life might be saved. Of late years, ugly headed corruption has invaded officialdom and has found a father secure nesting place even in the Coast Guard Service. The Coast Guard Service was created for the protection of the lives and property of persons sailing American waters, and today that the Eighteenth Amendment may be enforced this is either forgotten or abandoned.

The failure of the American government, through its Coast Guard Service, to take some definite steps for the recovery of the bodies lost through the sinking of the Tanker Pinthis, as directed to the attention of the public through the instrumentality of the Boston American, should serve to arouse officialdom at Washington as to the necessity for a change in the policy with reference to the duties and responsibilities of the Coast Guard Service.

Very truly yours,

James M. Curley

Mayor.

THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN'S fight to have the bodies of the crew recovered from the sunken tanker Pinthis was given the wholehearted support and commendation of Mayor Curley in the above letter.

CROOKER DEMANDS SENATORS PROBE BUTLER '$500,000 CAMPAIGN'

CALLS DRAPER RIVAL 'ROBOT CANDIDATE'

Writes Nye That Law Is Violated in the Huge Expenditures and in Other Ways

Terming William M. Butler a "robot candidate" for the Republican nomination for United States senator, Conrad Crooker of the Liberal Civic League today called upon the Senate campaign investigating committee to launch an immediate probe of Butler's campaign.

"There is not more than one-half of one per cent of spontaneous public interest in his candidacy; his campaign has been artificially inspired and carried on by the use of money," wrote Crooker in a letter to Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the Senate committee.

Crooker, general counsel for the league, which opposes Butler as a "dry" candidate, charged:

That the Butler campaign has been carried on with a scale of munificence and extravagance never before known in Massachusetts.

That the Massachusetts corrupt practices act has already been violated.

"$500,000 CAMPAIGN."

That three headquarters are maintained in Boston with a payroll of $1800 a week.

That, according to reports, individuals have been retained at $2500 apiece "some of whom are not even expected to vote for Butler so long as they do not oppose him."

That not less than 1000 ex-service men have been hired and if these are paid only $100 each, the total cost would be $100,000.

That the estimated cost of the Butler campaign is "not a cent less than $500,000."

Crooker also renewed a charge previously made by him that Fredrick H. Prince, the banker, had contributed $200,000 and was willing to contribute $300,000 more, if necessary, in behalf of Butler.

He pointed out that the Massachusetts corrupt practices act limits a candidate or a committee in his behalf to expenditure of not more than $25,000.

"Butler and those associated with him," he wrote, "have gone about the contest with complete indifference to any restriction of law and in supreme contempt of any limitation whatsoever in the matter of expenditure."

$50,000 POSTERS

Crooker asserted the Butler committee had not filed any statement with the Secretary of State until July 2, but that long before that date the State was "plastered with Butler posters, at an expense of not less than $50,000, every dollar in violation of the law."

None of the Butler billboard advertising was signed, he declared, adding that if this advertising constituted a direct activity of the candidate himself, it represented a cost ten times more than he could legally spend to secure his nomination.

Pledges totalling $100,000 collected in Butler's behalf represent an expense of $10,000, he said, while radio broadcasting contracted for must cost not less than $10,000.

Sixty persons are employed at the three Butler headquarters, he asserted, and the bills for these salaries, in Crooker's opinion, will total more than $25,000 for the whole campaign.

EDISON EXAMS ON TODAY

West Orange, N. J., July 31—Forty-nine boys, the selected prodigies of 48 states and the District of Columbia will match wits in the Edison scholarship examinations today.

Yesterday was Henry Ford's 67th birthday and he celebrated it by talking readily to newspaper men and laconically to the boys who are here as guests of Thomas A. Edison.

To the boys Ford gave his message in Coolidge fashion, in 23 words:

"There is only one thing I have to say. Be sure in your mind that there is no such thing as 'no chance!'"

With representatives of the press, Ford discussed a variety of subjects. About unemployment, he said:

"People can always go back to the farm. Many are too busy to be unemployed."

He was asked:

"Yes, they have, but—Great Scott! Too many people are looking for a Santa Claus."

He was asked if there is any new field for success, and answered:

"Yes. I think the manufacture and distribution of some kind of pure water that everybody would like and which could be sold at a low price would be a wonderful field."

"Water with a kick in it?"

"Well, if you are thirsty, water has plenty of kick."

Edison told the boys:

"Do not count too heavily on your mental attainments. They are necessary to success, but remember always that there is no substitute for hard work."

Harvey Firestone, tire manufacturer and intimate of Ford and Edison, also addressed the boys. He, also, is a member of the committee to conduct the examination today. Others are Charles Edison, the inventor's son; William Lowe Bryan, president of Indiana University; Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman and headmaster of Phillips-Exeter Academy, and Dr. Hubert S. Howe of Columbia University.

SMITH IS SURE GIRL IS DEAD

Branding a new identification "not only remote but impossible," St. John Smith, wealthy father of Frances St John Smith, who disappeared from Smith College two years ago, today saw no hope of seeing his daughter in a picture of a Cincinnati amnesia victim.

At the Smith summer home, The Ledges, at Amherst, the New York financier stood by the finding of a girl's body in Longmeadow last fall as the solution of his daughter's whereabouts. Due to decomposition identification was made only through dental work.

"It is not only remote, but impossible that the girl in Cincinnati is my daughter," he said today.

"I didn't ask for the photo and the first I knew of their sending it was when the police of Cincinnati notified me it was on the way.

Ottawa Minister, in Hub, Races to Beat R-100

Col. J. L. Ralston, Canadian Minister of National Defense, paid a four-hour visit to Boston today, arriving by boat from Yarmouth, N. S., and leaving by plane for Montreal, in a race to greet the R-100.

The Fairchild cabin plane in which he took off from the Boston airport was flown from Ottawa this morning in three hours and 20 minutes by Flight Lieut. Earl Jellison of the Canadian Royal Air Force, who started the return flight to Canada with but 35 minutes' rest.

Col. Ralston had been at Yarmouth for the elections and came to Boston to visit friends, intending to go from here to Montreal by train to be on hand for the arrival of the British dirigible. The report that the R-100 had speeded up and would arrive earlier than expected resulted in the plane being dispatched for him and he had no time in which to pay intended calls upon acquaintances here.

WILKINS SEES NO DANGER IN BRITISH PLANS

Says U. S. Need Not Worry About the Air Proposal Made by Denmark

London, July 31—"I do not think America or any other nation need greatly worry over the report that Great Britain has opened negotiations with Denmark for the purchase of Greenland as a necessary half-way point for a future Arctic air route to Canada."

This was the opinion given here by Sir Hubert Wilkins in an exclusive interview with Universal Service before he sailed for New York on the Bremen with Lady Wilkins, who flew to Europe aboard the Graf Zeppelin with the explorer at the start of their belated honeymoon. The Bremen is due in New York today.

TRIP UNDER ARCTIC ICE

Sir Hubert, who is, by the way, a frequent caller at both North and South Polar regions, while in America will supervise the reconstruction of a U. S. Navy submarine which has been put at his disposal for a projected journey to the North Pole under Arctic ice.

Sir Hubert smiled when he mentioned the rumored British purchase of Greenland, adding:

"Of course, I am not cognizant of the plans of the British Foreign Office, but I do think that I know the British Air Ministry is not contemplating seizing exclusive air routes to America by way of Greenland.

"It is true that the British Arctic air route expedition aboard the S. S. Quest is now en route to Greenland to make a year's study of meteorological conditions over the high plateau of this northernmost island, but until these scientific investigations are completed—and I very much doubt the feasibility of the route for commercial airplanes—I remain in doubt as to the intent of Great Britain to secure sovereignty over Greenland."

FAVORS AZORES ROUTE

Sir Hubert said that the East-West route for heavier-than-air craft would always offer insuperable difficulties, pointing out:

"Between Britain and Greenland there is a definite and more or less permanent fog northwest of the Faroe Islands, and on the second leg of that route, there is an equally permanent fog belt over and north of Newfoundland.

"In my opinion, until instruments which will surely guide airplanes plunge through fog are perfected, or a wireless directional chain established, the idea of an England-America route by way of the Arctic must remain more or less fantastic. I am still of the opinion that the practical air route between Europe and North America is via the Azores."

TOBEY DEMANDS WHOLE SCHOOL BOARD QUIT

New Hampshire Governor Names Nashua Relief Head to Take Emerson's Place

Concord, N. H., July 31—With the unanimous support of his executive council here on his charges that young girls were barbarically treated at the State Industrial School in Manchester, Governor Charles W. Tobey demanded the resignations of the entire board of trustees.

The request for a thorough public investigation made by the ousted chairman of school trustees, Charles Emerson of Milford, was flatly denied by the council.

Tobey's refusal to reappoint Emerson as chairman was supported by the five councilors, and in a formal statement dispatched to Emerson they declared that a change was necessary, due to the startling testimony of school conditions which the governor had personally obtained in the presence of reliable witnesses.

NEW HEAD CHOSEN

It was announced last night, that Harry A. Gregg of Nashua, prominent merchant and former police chief, was appointed unanimously as the successor to Emerson. After the recent Nashua fire Gregg headed the Red Cross relief campaign.

In a second statement sent each member of the board of trustees, Governor Tobey and his council set forth their action and demanded the individual resignations of the present trustees. An entire new board will be created shortly, it was said, and a conference with national experts on problems of child delinquency will be held next month.

"The incident is closed," the councilors announced, repeating earlier words of the governor. "There must be no resumption of inhuman punishment."

CHARGES SUPPORTED

In declining to grant the investigation requested by ex-Chairman Emerson, the councilors declared that in their joint opinion nothing could be gained by acquiescence in view of the testimony gathered by the governor.

"Evidence," they stated, "was given by girl inmates and attendants which fully substantiated the statements of the governor which appeared in the press."

50 REDS KILLED BY U. S. TARS; 5 SAILORS SHOT

Shanghai, July 31 (AP)—Five American sailors were wounded as the crew of the United States Gunboat Palos successfully fought off an attack of Chinese Communists near Changsha yesterday.

About fifty Communists were killed and many wounded as the bluejackets returned the fire of the Reds who raked the ship with machine guns and rifles.

The Reds attacked on the Siang River as the Palos was approaching the Communist-ravaged city to make a survey of the ruins. Opening fire with 100 rifles and 10 machine guns, the Communists showered the Palos with bullets.

Caught in close quarters and unable to turn back, the Palos brought her three-inch rifles and machine guns into action, firing into the attackers at close range.

The battle raged for an hour before the Communists were silenced. The attackers had taken up positions behind shacks and in undergrowth along the bank. Heavy fire was necessary to clear the shore.

Five sailors suffered flesh wounds. Although the Palos was hit hundreds of times, she was not materialy damaged.

Dispatches today said foreigners in Kuling, a summer resort, had been urged by Chinese authorities to leave immediately. There are hundreds of foreigners, including scores of Americans in Kuling.

Brighton Man Is in Chinese War Zone

Dispatches from China telling of pillaging and burning of Changsha by Chinese Communist troops caused anxiety today in the home of the Rev. Elias W. Anthony, pastor of the Brighton Congregational Church.

B. Kenneth Anthony, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Anthony and a Yale graduate in the class of 1928, was in Changsha when last heard from in a letter dated June 9. Although that letter said he would leave the city for Japan, July 15, his parents fear that he may have delayed until too late.

Anthony went to China immediately after his graduation from Yale, to teach at Yali, the "Chinese Yale," in Changsha. He was to leave that city for Kobe, Japan, on July 15 to meet his fiancee, Miss Helen Bursaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bursaw of Beverly.

Anthony and his fiancee are to be married at Kobe next Saturday, under their original plans. Miss Bursaw left Boston for Kobe with her mother, on July 9.

Two Stay in China War Zone Because of Scruples

Peiping, July 31 (AP)—Radio messages sent to the American legation here today said the two Americans still in Changsha, remained behind because they had conscientious objections against accepting protection from gunboats.

The two Americans are William Lingle, of Salisbury, N. C., member of the Presbyterian mission, and Allen Cameron, Lawrence, Kas., of the Hunan Faith Mission. Other of the American mission organizations were evacuated by United States river gunboats.

First Quake Horror Photo Reaches Hub

QUAKE DAMAGE 'EXAGGERATED'

Rome, July 31 (AP)—Denial that activity of the volcano of Vesuvius holds any menace or that there are 1,000,000 persons in the earthquake zone without shelter against the menace of epidemics was issued by the Stefani News Agency today.

In a communique which said some foreign newspapers had published exaggerated reports regarding the extent of the quake damage in the vicinity of Naples, the agency said that the daily announcements of the quake damage had concealed nothing.

In Naples the communique said only a few old houses were destroyed or damaged, while only four persons were killed in the city and eight in the province.

Firemen Rescue Venus From Garb of Poison Ivy

Winona Lake, Ind., July 31 (AP)—The fire department has come to the rescue of the Venus de Milo, and a scheme to clothe the goddess' statue in poison ivy has been thwarted.

Mrs. Mary Schell Starr of Chicago, summering here, holds the opinion that the statue, which has been a figure of artistic pride for 20 years, should wear something. The statue was moved to a location near the fire station and the circumstance gave Mrs. Starr an opportunity to put her idea into action.

Poison ivy was planted around the base of the statue. Mrs. Starr expressed the hope, according to the firemen, that the ivy would grow until that "indecent figure should be all covered."

The firemen, who are really art lovers at heart, decided to foil the scheme. The turned the hose on the ivy, rooting it up.

TESTIMONY IN LINGLE CASE UPSETS PROBE

Chicago, July 31 (INS)—Identification of Frankie Foster, "Scarface" Al Capone gangster, as the man who fled from the scene where Alfred "Jake" Lingle was shot to death today changed the entire tenor of the murder investigation.

Foster, an ex-Moran gangster was indicted for the murder of the racketeering reporter after his apprehension in Los Angeles.

Yesterday Policeman Anthony Ruthy took the witness stand during a hearing on motion for Foster's bail and positively identified Foster as the fugitive he pursued from the mouth of the subway where Lingle was slain.

As a result of Foster's identification authorities today were confronted with the problem of whether to proceed on the theory that the traffic officer was not mistaken or to continue along the old line of their inquiry.

Foster's description did not fit that of the actual killer, according to witnesses.

Lindy Flies Home From Washington

Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., July 31 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed his plane at Teterboro airport from Washington at 10:30 a. m. (Eastern standard time). He left Rolling field in Washington with Harry S. Guggenheim, ambassador to Cuba, at 9:15 a. m.

ENDURANCE MEN NEAR HALF-WAY TO NEW MARK

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., July 31 (AP)—Bob Black and Lou Reichers, endurance fliers, passed their 258th hour in the air at 11:30 a. m. (E. D. T.) today.

The first night refuelling contact was made last night with the aid of a large flashlight attached to te gasoline hose.

Tonight the fliers are due to pass the halfway mark in their attempt to better the present record of 304 hours aloft.

St. Louis Fliers on Their Eleventh Day

Lambert-St. Louis Field, July 31 (INS)—One year ago today Dale "Red" Jackson and Forrest O'Brine were acclaimed as the world endurance champions, and at 11 a. m. today the same pair rode grimly into the 243d hour of their effort to beat the world mark set by the Hunter brothers of Sparta, Ill. They are on their 11th day.

It was just one years ago last night that the pair now flying the Greater St. Louis landed the St. Louis Robin here to set a then unheard of mark of 420 hours in the air.

Warrants for Wife of Greek Diplomat

Washington, July 31 (AP)—The Washington Post said today warrants had been issued charging the wife of Stephen Koundouriotis, chancellor of the Greek legation, with violations of the Maryland automobile owner and operator laws.

Justice of the Peace Herbert J. Moffat, of Hyattsville, Md., who issued the warrants, the Post said, plans to make a formal complaint to the State Department that the Greek attache, while discussing the charges against his wife, said he was "better than Americans" and was not bound by their laws.

Four out of five may have it but only one in a million is arrested because of it.

Lieut. George D. Samonski of Hingham, a navy diver and salvage expert, was arraigned before Judge Carr in municipal court today on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor.

Traffic Officer John Sullivan, whose post is Beacon and Charles sts., said he smelled liquor on Lieut. Samonski's breath after George Naida of Myrtle st., West End, had called his attention to the manner in which the navy man was operating his car.

Then came to the witness stand Pharmacist's Mate Herbert Green, who testified that he had filled for Lieut. Samonski a prescription made out by a navy physician for a mouth wash was for the treatment of pyorrhea. It might have smelled a little alcoholic he admitted.

"Not guilty, said the court.

173 OFFICERS SHIFTED TO NEW POSTS

All but two of the 21 police divisions in the city cleaned out lockers today as 173 men, including two lieutenants and 14 sergeants, prepared for new posts tomorrow in the greatest shakeup in the history of Boston's department.

The transfers, many of them on recommendations of the various captains, were ordered by Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman to take effect at tomorrow morning's roll call.

Following closely on the surprise shakeup at the Legrange st. station a week ago, when the commissioner "minced no words" in his display of dissatisfaction, the latest transfers rocked the entire department into an attitude of who's next?

The Lagrange st. station and the harbor police were the only units untouched in the latest move, while Joy st. station came through lightly with the transfer of only two sergeants and one patrolman.

TIMMINS SHIFTED

Sergt. Arthur D. Timmins, prominent figure in the Garrett hearing before Atty.-Gen. Warner, receives orders for duty in West Roxbury. Special Officer Arthur Tiernan, another figure at the hearing, was also sent to "the sticks" for duty at Brighton. Both served at the East Dedham st. station in the South End.

Sergt. William H. McKenzie, former head of one of the headquarters liquor squads and later assigned to Charlestown, was again moved in town for duty at Joy st. station, and Sergt. Mark Leonard of headquarters drew an assignment to the same station.

NEW SHAKEUP FEARED

The two lieutenants moved were Allen V. Nixon of the Milk st. station and Harry T. Grace of the Brighton division, the two swapping places.

The transfers complete the shakeup that has hovered over the down-town stations. At least that is the general feeling among the men of the department.

But the outlying stations are not resting easy in spite of the fact that the transfers have greatly affected them.

In his order the commissioner explained that the present shifts are on recommendations of the division commanders in compliance with his request for the names of those the captains wanted transferred out of their districts.

Some few, the order said, were on the request of the men themselves.

Lynn Man Faces Death Trial in N. B.

Hampton, N. B., July 31 (AP)—A charge against Orrin E. Morse of Lynn, Mass., held by Provincial police for reckless driving a car as a result of the death of Mrs. Roland Ryder of Havelock, N. B., was changed to manslaughter at a hearing last night. The case was delayed today to await the testimony of two men driving another United States car past the scene.

Forest Fires Set by Lightning Rage

Missoula, Mont., July 31 (AP)—Several hundred volunteers today were fighting flames in western Montana and northern Idaho forests where lightning had ignited the tinder-dry woods.

A fire sweeping along a six-mile front in the Selway forest east of Kooskia, Idaho, last night had consumed 600 acres of timber.

Predicts U. S. Heat Wave Will Last 'Till Labor Day

Washington, July 31 (AP)—Henry Janvrin Browne, whose long range forecasts have brought him into conflict with the Weather Bureau, today said the present break in the heat was only temporary and there would be no definite end to the wave until after Labor Day.

Months ago, Browne said, he was convinced a sun spot cycle, coupled with a lunar cycle, indicated this summer would be hot and dry. Perusal of weather records had convinced him unusually hot and dry summers prevailed in 1874 and 1818.

NAVY SHELLS HALT TRAFFIC

Scores of Boston-bound automobiles were held up for half an hour today, when a lighter, loaded with ammunition for the navy yard, towed by the navy tug Nocake, jammed in the draw of the Weymouth Back River bridge on the Nantasket highway.

The tug and lighter had just left the Naval Ammunition depot at Hingham with a cargo of large and small shells, destined eventually for ships of the battle fleet.

The tug worked the lighter free without calling aid. It was reported that the regular skipper was on furlough, and the bo'sun, who was in command of the tug, attempted to swing through the draw from the wharf without first backing into the river.

The cable reported that the relatives of Dr. Antonio de Febertis of 239 Broadway were safe in the badly damaged town of Melfi. Joseph Tommare of the North End was told that his wife, who was visiting at San Sossio, Baronia, was safe.

Moslem Women Seek Spooning, Divorces and No Veils

London, July 31 (AP)—The Daily Herald says that women delegates from every Moslem country have just concluded a congress at Damascus, which represents the first concerted move by women of the Islamic faith to escape its restrictions.

The correspondent says the women adopted a resolution calling for abolition of the veil, for permitting brides and bridegrooms to see each other before marriage, for making divorce possible to women equally with men, for making 18 years the minimum age for marriage, and for compulsory education of children of both sexes.

BOOZE PLANE IN FLAMES

San Francisco, July 31 (AP)—The Point Reyes Coast Guard station lookout today reported a large airplane burst into flames over "Bootleggers' Cove," eight miles east of the station, and plunged into the ocean, Point Reyes is 20 miles north of here.

A lifesaving crew put out search for the wreckage, but had not located the plane or any survivors early today.

The lookout said he saw the plane flying about two miles off shore at an elevation of about 200 feet.

INSTRUCTORS AT AIRPORT KEPT BUSY

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The anticipated drop in student instruction at Boston airport during the summer months, during which resident flying schools are operated on the Cape, has not materialized, according to Harry D. Copland, manager of the Boston base of the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service.

When the opening of the company's summer flying school was announced, the home base was prepared for a more or less large drop in students at the airport on Jeffries Point. Plans were made to take care of the loss, with one student instructor shifted to Martha's Vineyard school, four ships sent down there and preparations to send another instructor down.

FORMATION WORK

With the entire industry feeling to a slight degree the business depression, Copland stated, the present rising trend toward "home" instruction has proved a surprise. It is no uncommon sight to find the first student of the day reporting early in the morning and the last one scheduled for late evening.

Three students desiring formation work were taken up in three separate planes late last evening and flown around for half an hour. Instructors Kendall, Backstrom and Tanner were along as check pilots, and would execute a maneuver to be followed by the students.

SKYWAYS KEPT BUSY

"It has been gratifying, of course, to experience this increase in business," said Copland today, "and we are all a bit surprised. It goes to prove that there are still many young men and women who want to handle the controls of an airplane, with either business or pleasure flying planned when they receive their licenses."

Upon investigation the same situation was found at Skyways, with anywhere from eight to a dozen students booked each day, according to Crocker Snow, president.

Girls Cheer as Officer Battles With Bat

A bat flew in through the window and, with its long wings, frightened the girls as it swooped about. Patrolman Magus came on the scene and, armed with a mop, galloped around until he finally floored the "winged monster." Feminine applause resounded when the bat was removed.

Naval Parade Will Be Legion Feature

Boston is to witness a great naval parade during the national convention of the American Legion, Oct. 6 to 9, it became known today. Secretary of the Navy Adams has ordered the battleship Arkansas here, in honor of National Comdr. O. L. Bodenhamer of Arkansas, and a string of cruisers, destroyers, a gunboat and a mine layer.

In addition to these, Legion men are now engaged in marshaling the yachts of New England, in a canvass of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine yacht clubs, to join the naval display and parade.

Imperial Conference Program Announced

London, July 31.—Inter-imperial relations, foreign policy and defense, and economic questions, will be the program of the Imperial Conference to be held in London in October, Prime Minister MacDonald announced in the House of Commons. He was replying to a question by Stanley Baldwin, leader of the Conservative party.

Young Wife Happy Now

"Before my little daughter was born I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly. I was able to do my usual work and take pleasure in doing it. We were so happy when a wonderfully fine baby girl arrived to bless our home. I have enjoyed better health since the baby's birth than ever before. I am sure that I owe it all to your medicine and I heartily recommend it to all women who are weak or ailing."—Mrs. Chester Decker, R. R. #1, Wheatland, Indiana.

THE WRIGHT TAVERN, CONCORD

Standing in the village square, this old Colonial tavern appears exactly as in the period of the Concord resistance. It is still a hostelry, serving tourists and travelers as in earlier days.

As usual in former times, the "ordinary" and the meeting house were close neighbors. Next door to the tavern is the famous meeting house where the Provincial Congress was held. The present structure is not the original church, however.

BUILT IN 1747

This tavern was built in 1747 by Ephraim Jones. He was a captain in the militia. Then Thomas Monroe took possession in 1751. It is Colonial in architecture. The square in which it stands is the geographical center of old Concord, the original grant being six miles square. The landlord's name was Wright at the time of the Revolution, and it has since been called by that name.

During the Concord fight, the inn was one of the headquarters of the British. Jones's Tavern quartered Col Smith. This tavern, too, was on the main street, Maj. Pitcairn was at Wright's. Here he is said to have made the famous boast while stirring his morning dram, that before the day was over he would "stir the damned Yankee blood."

It has been attributed to him, but no authority can prove that he or another officer is the originator. At least, Yankee blood was stirred that day effectually.

He was a profane, rough type, but brave. He met death at Bunker Hill, while climbing a redoubt, being shot by a negro, Peter Salem. He fell into the arms of his son and was removed from the battlefield. He was buried under Christ Church on Salem st., Boston.

WAS GATHERING PLACE

Wright's Tavern was the center for rebel activities before and during the war, troops reporting there. Women and their children congregated there for news of their men-folk who were fighting. It is intimately associated with Concord's part in the Revolution.

The Provincial Congress was organized at Concord in 1774. Here was the seat of Massachusetts government, for one day one the royal governor was relieved of all his powers. This Congress functioned adequately, taking charge of the monies, calling out companies of minute men to be ready at a moment's notice; it elected generals and established military laws.

The Second Provincial Congress adjourned only four days before the fight at Concord. Concord and Worcester were the two inland towns where the largest arsenals and military stores were kept. Concord having the most supplies.

MANY CONFERENCES

Upon this depot marched the British. Concord knew that a fight was inevitable and willingly took the responsibility, months before as her share in the cause for independence. The old tavern saw many conferences and was the breeding-ground for rebellion against tyranny.

Reuben Rice and Judge Hoar together purchased the inn during the late 19th century. Mr. Rice bequeathed and the judge gave the old landmark to the parish as a memorial to provincial days.

2 Die in Plunge of Bus

Berlin, July 31 — Two persons were killed and 36 rescued when a motorbus plunged into the Dme river from a bridge.

CUT CONCORD TAX RATE

Taxpayers of Concord today welcomed announcement by the local board of assessors of a reduction of $4 in the tax rate for 1930 from last year's record high rate of $42.

The new rate will be $38 on each $1000, the lower rate having been made possible through an increase in the town's valuation and through a smaller town grant. The tax rate two years ago was $37.80, but in 1927 it was up to $40.90.

The town has an assessed valuation of $8,578,890, as compared with last year's valuation of $8,279,161. Of this year's valuation, $7,901,120 is in real estate, and $677,770 in personal property.

Low Priced Tickets at European Bouts

"The news despatches concerning the Stribling-Scott bout in England," said Mr. Boston, "told how the London cockneys rushed from their five shilling seats to the higher priced sections just before the main bout started.

"In American money, five shillings would amount to $1.25. One would not even be allowed in the vicinity of where a big bout was being held in America for this amount of money.

"The best break Mister Everyday Fight Fan got on the occasion of a big fight in the United States was when the Milk Fund committee, working in conjunction with the New York Garden, sold 20,000 tickets at $2 for the Sharkey-Schmeling bout in New York. This gave the man on the street an opportunity to see the show.

"Boxing has been built up to a major sport in America by the $1 and $2 boys. They usually attend every show. They do not even pass up the attractions which look poor on paper. They will always tell you that there is some preliminary kid on the card who promises to give them action for their money.

"If it were not for these individuals, boxing couldn't go very far.

"And yet when there is an outstanding match the price of tickets is jacked up to a point where the every-day fight fan is obliged to witness the fun a mile or so from the ring.

"When Tunney and Dempsey fought at Soldiers Field in Chicago, the 85 customers were in the adjoining county. Even some of those persons who paid $40 a copy for ringside seats were a great distance from the ring.

France Always Has Low Priced Tickets

"The Department of Labor in France insists that the working man get a break at all big shows. There must be a certain number of seats at low prices. There is not any restriction on what shall be charged for ringside seats, but it is a different story on the cheaper sections.

"Since Max Schmeling returned to Germany, there has been considerable talk of his making a European ring appearance against a first class opponent. There is not any chance of this occurring.

"Madison Square Garden Corporation has a contract which calls for Schmeling's appearance in his first title defense. The contract also calls for the match to take place in New York state.

"The low price scale and heavy taxes in Europe would also make such a bout impossible.

"George R. Canty, U. S. Trade Commissioner to Europe, recently told this writer that in France they have an amusement tax of 25 per cent. State tax of 3 per cent and a municipal tax of 1 per cent. After the promoters take the taxes off the top, there isn't much left the dear old boxers.

"Commissioner Canty asserted that Sharkey and Schmeling would not have drawn more than $100,000 in Berlin, while the same match netted $715,000 in New York.

"The United States will continue to be the scene of most big bouts as long as it draws the record gates.

Steamer Chairs for Fans at Ringside

"Ringside patrons at the Stribling-Scott contest in steamer chairs. They also had a bar handy so that they were assured of some enjoyment regardless of what might have happened in the ring.

"American promoters place their $40 ringside customers on benches.

"Eighteen inches are allowed for a customer at the ordinary show, but when the demand for pasteboards grows the dear old promoters only allow the millionaires and big butter and egg men 14 inches of space each. I don't attempt to imagine what happens when somebody as bulky as Fatty Arbuckle attempts to drop into one of those 14-inch spaces."

By BILL GRIMES

One upset marked the first round of the Massachusetts junior golf championship this morning at the Belmont Spring Country Club when Fred Baker of Thorny Lee eliminated Frank Reidy, Wachusett, 2 and 1.

Otherwise the matches all ran true to prediction. Bill Donnelly, the defending champion, simply licked them around to beat John Gallagher, Waltham, whose qualification was more or less of a mystery, 8 to 7.

Jimmy Gannon, Colonial, a big favorite to succeed Donnelly as champion, and Eddie Peterson of Crow Point, shot the best golf this morning, both going to the turn in 37.

Don Carra of Salem managed to carry Jimmy Gannon through the 16th hole, but Peterson scored a 6 and 5 victory over Peter Greeley of Arlmont.

Tommy Quinn Turns in Feature Shot

Little Tommy Quinn of Chestnut Hill went out in 40 against Earl Adams of Belmont Spring, winning his match, 4 and 3. Quinn's iron shot to the ninth hole, which ran right by the cup and stopped three feet beyond, was one of the features of the first round.

Wilfred Crossley, who was the medalist in the qualifying round, caught a tarter in Richard Hayes of Haverhill and was forced to battle 17 holes before eliminating his opponent.

There was only one extra-hole match this morning. Gerard W. Moore won a one up decision at the 19th over Charley Pickering of Wollaston. Moore's failure to life his opponent's ball on the 18th green, where the balls rested two inches apart, was responsible for the match going to the extra hole.

John Quinn, Chestnut Hill, defeated Earl J. Adams, Belmont Springs, 4 and 3.
Gerard W. Moore, Woodland, defeated Charles Pickering, 1 up, 19 holes.
W. H. Donnelly, Jr., Woodland, defeated John Gallagher, Waltham, 8 and 7.

Mickey Walker K. O.'s Willie Oster

Newark, N. J., July 31—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, knocked out Willie Oster of Boston, former navy champion, after 50 seconds of the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout at Dreamland Park.

Walker's title was not at stake, both boxers coming in over the middleweight limit. Walker weighed 163, Oster 168.

Many Entries for Somerville Show

Entries are pouring in for the amateur boxing tournament of the City Employees' A. A., which will be staged on Dilboy Field, West Somerville, next Tuesday evening.

There will be competition in the 126, 135, 147, 160 and light heavy classes.

While each of the lighter classes has its quota of topnotche, and will provide plenty of action, the light heavyweight class appears to be the outstanding.

REDS TO PLAY NIGHT BALL

Indianapolis, Ind., July 31 (INS)—Added to the converts of night baseball today was the Cincinnati Reds team.

The Cincinnati club will be the first major league outfit to play night baseball, according to Sidney Weil, president of the Reds.

After watching the major leaguers fall before the Indianapolis club, 17 to 5, last night in an exhibition, Weil declared he had been converted to the nocturnal style of play.

Weil said he expected to have the Reds playing after-dinner ball before another year had passed.

Malden Wins in 14th Inning, 5 to 4

Portland, Me., July 31—Malden continued in the lead of the Boston Twilight League by defeating Portland, 5 to 4, after 14 innings of play here. A triple play by Crowley, Cogan and Johnson of Portland was the feature of a game replete with fielding thrills.

McGregor led the batters with four safeties, including a double, in six trips. Johnson and Edwards led the Portland batters. Both pitchers were hit-stingy, Cassista allowing eight and Powers nine.

Cassista passed 13, however, while Powers free-ticketed nine.

McDonald Sets Up New Met. Track Record

The three-day racing meet of the League of Amateur Drivers at the Charles River Speedway, Brighton, will close today. Thus far, it has been the most successful meet ever held in this section.

Today will be known as Metropolitan District Commission Day, and it is expected to prove as successful as the first two days.

Many fine races are in prospect, and it is expected that the biggest crowd of the week will witness the closing program.

More than 20,000 persons saw the series of trots and paces yesterday.

Mayor Curley in silks drove Victory Loan, and his honor handled the reins like a veteran, according to George Lowell, the owner of the chestnut son of Peter Scott.

W. J. McDonald, who is rated by horsemen the country over as one of its best amateur drivers, in the sulky behind Walter Newbert's Best in the 2:23 trot, set a new track record.

It was announced after the clockers reached their verdict that the time of Best was 2:09¾.

One race that was held over from the opening day was decided, Betty Guy winning. Four heats were necessary to decide the event, Betty Guy taking the third and fourth. Barbara Martin won a heat and so did Worthy Heir.

Two remarkable heats were seen in the 2:12 trot, which was won by Chestnut Dillon, a horse that has been campaigned on several loops with success. He is owned by E. H. Sawyer of the Metropolitan Driving Club.

A classy field furnished opposition for Chestnut Horse, but he demonstrated that he could take care of it by the way in which he trotted.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

The wrists are always a bothersome factor in the golf swing. Two influences are the cause of this. One is the widespread theory that some sort of wrist-throwing is desirable. The other is that you probably misuse your wrists otherwise. The wrists have little to do beyond flowing through the ball, and in doing this they should go through in about the same position, their relation to the club, that with regard to they have in the address. Now note that carefully because one of the real secrets of good golf shots is found right there. In the address position, as I have previously emphasized, your left wrist should be depressed slightly, which means it is broken downward toward the ground somewhat. In this relative position with regard to the club it stays throughout your back swing. Also it continues in this position through the ball, forward, and to the finish of the stroke. Keep your left wrist in this position and the chances are it will change your whole manner of golfing—for the better.

What it is that makes a long iron shot long is told in clear, terse, concise manner in Mr. Horton's new monograph on long iron shots, without which one's golf game forever calls for extra strokes. This helpful material is free. Obtain it by addressing Mr. Horton in care this newspaper and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Jacobs Fails to Meet Stribling & Co.

New York, July 31 (AP)—If W. L. ("Young") Stribling, now rated as the outstanding challenger for Max Schmeling's questionable heavyweight title, remains in England for a conference with Joe Jacobs, the German's manager, he will have a long wait, it appears.

Stribling and Manager "Pa" were said to have postponed their sailing home from England pending the arrival of Jacobs. Jacobs still is in the United States and has made no plans for an early sailing for Europe.

POLICE ESCORT AIDS BABE IN BOSTON TO NANTASKET RUN OF 34 MINUTES

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Battering Babe Ruth, Behometh of Swat, is mighty in bulk as well as in batting prowess, but he gets about, as many an American League pitcher can testify.

The Babe is also big-hearted, with a lot of sympathy for the sick, which accounts for him speeding over South Shore roads today behind a motorcycle police escort.

When Ruth arrived in town yesterday he learned with dismay that Nick Flatley, sports editor of the Boston Evening American, who has not been feeling so good, is recovering his strength on the sands at Nantasket.

The Babe decided to pay him a visit, but how to make this trip and be back in time for the game was a question, as the Bambino wouldn't disappoint the fans and his teammates.

A conference with the boys in the American office solved the problem in short order.

The matter was explained to Lieut. Pine in the office of Deputy Supt. Goode, in charge of traffic in Boston, to Chief of Police Bishop of Quincy and to Capt. Baupre of the state police.

Motorcycle Escort Cleared the Way

As a result each agreed to furnish motorcycle escorts to clear the road and permit the Babe to get to Nantasket and back in record time.

TOLD JACK CONWAY THAT TOUR BOXING ALL COMERS NETTED HIM $180,000

By JACK CONWAY

"I made a million dollars during my career as a boxer," John L. Sullivan told this writer during a chat at his Abington farm a few years before his death.

"We did not receive any $100,000 purses in our day," went on the former heavyweight champion, "but I fought often. The gold kept rolling in to me.

"I earned $180,000 on my famous tour when I met all comers, agreeing to pay $1000 to any man who lasted four rounds with me.

"Unlike present day boxers, I didn't bring along my own opponents. I fought the home town hero and usually bowled him over in two or three rounds.

"I didn't hold on to my money. I considered money something with which to make the world happier.

"At times I have been pictured as a rowdy, a man who tossed away his earnings during wild barroom orgies. Such was not the case. I gave liberally of my money to worthy charities and never turned down a fellow who was up against it.

"I did at times frequent barrooms and public houses where liquor was sold, but that was part of the life of a fighter in my day.

"Men who owned public houses sponsored a boxer so that he would be around the place. They felt a boxer brought customers to the place and in that way helped business.

Jack Conway

"In my day liquor was commonly used by most people, and as a consequence nobody got greatly alarmed when somebody opened a bottle and invited the gang to have a drink.

A DRINK ON JOHN L.

"After some of my bouts, I walked into public houses, tossed a bill on the bar and asked everybody in the place to have a drink on John L.

"You might now place that under the heading of ballyhoo. In my day, the saloon and the public house were gathering places for men who followed sport. You could usually find anybody in the sporting world of prominence at the bar of the Adams House or at Clarke's. The American House and Quincy House later developed into hangouts for the set.

"Of late years I have dealt some hard blows at Kid Booze. He is one bird nobody can lick. You may outpoint the old fellow for a time, but he always keeps crowding you. Sooner or later he will slip in a winning punch. Its good judgment to give Kid Booze a wide berth."

I asked Sullivan at the time why he never fought Peter Jackson.

"I agreed to battle Jackson in private," said John L. "But he wouldn't go for that. Jackson was a speedy boxer, but if I had ever got him into a small room John L. would have been the one to have walked out."

This statement of the old warrior bears out some of the remarks he made at the time he was champion and Jackson was demanding a bout with him.

"I shall agree to battle Jackson, but the bout will have to be staged in a 16-foot ring so that the Negro won't be able to get away from me," declared Sullivan at one time.

This caused Jackson to announce:

"I'll fight Sullivan in a barrel if that is the only condition under which he will meet me."

MULDOON OPPOSED BOUT

William Muldoon, veteran member of the New York Athletic Commission, is said to have influenced Sullivan in passing up Jackson. Muldoon has always opposed "color" matches. He stood with Jack Dempsey when the latter refused to sign for a meeting with Harry Wills.

Sullivan was living in Brooklyn during one of Jackson's trips to New York. Jackson was appearing at Miner's Eighth Avenue Theater, New York. Peter had recently returned from abroad. In his first bout in America after returning from his trip, he defeated Lambert at Troy, N. Y.

John L. didn't fear any man in the world and, if necessary, would have tackled a room filled with Peter Jacksons.

It was decided that William Muldoon should size up Jackson. Muldoon was training Jem L. at the time and had great influence over the champion.

Muldoon made the trip to the theater where Jackson was showing. He saw J. Peter box with Jack Fallon. He decided that a match with Jackson would not benefit Sullivan.

Muldoon's report caused Sullivan to adopt the famous slogan: "I won't fight a Negro!"

Jackson boxed an exhibition in Boston a few weeks later. John L. occupied a ringside seat and, with his own eyes, saw the Negro heavyweight in action.

Sullivan at the time expressed an opinion to friends that he was certain he could knock out Jackson in

ONCE ACCEPTED MATCH

Steve Mahoney, sporting editor of the Petty Record, informs me that John L. at one time signed to box Jackson in California, but that the match was prevented by the authorities before it was generally known that it was going to take place.

I believe Muldoon had more to do with keeping Sullivan out of the ring with Jackson than anybody else.

Otto Floto, famous sports writer who knew Sullivan well once discussed the failure of Sullivan to meet Jackson as follows:

"I won't say that Sullivan was afraid to meet Jackson, but will add that by the advice of his friends such a meeting never took place."

Jack Conway will have another article on John L. Sullivan in tomorrow's Boston Evening American. He will describe Sullivan's two battles with Charlie Mitchell, famous British heavyweight.

EX-CHAMP WHO WENT TO THE CHICKENS---NOT THE DOGS

NATE SIEGEL, former welterweight champion of New England in the days when the boys stepped in and slugged and didn't fade away and faint, is shown accommodating a bustling trade at his father's live poultry shops. Nate works as hard in his present occupation, as he did when he was throwing punches against Kloby, Shevlin and the rest of them. He's a champion in his present game, too.

CHAMPION FEATHER-PLUCKER is the title that Nate Siegel now wears in place of the welterweight boxing crown. Siegel is giving an exhibition of how he won, and holds, that particular adornament.

PEDLEY TO PLAY ON U. S. TEAM

New York, July 31 (AP)—The search for a man qualified to ride at No. 1 on the United States polo team in the international matches with Great Britain in September appears to have ended.

With Eric Pedley, a hard-riding, sharp-shooting Californian, performing sensationally at that position, polo critics are venturing to predict that Capt. Tommy Hitchcock will name the coast star to ride at the head of the quartet.

Nate Siegel, Ex-Pugilist, Is Prominent Poultry Man

There seems to be a general opinion among the pugilistic public that all graduates of the prize ring wind up as feebleminded, cauliflowered, wobbly-legged crack-pots who spend their last days in a horrible haze.

Little by little this general opinion is being dispelled. Many of the feted idols of the past are found in worthy occupations, sound of mind and sturdy of limb. Of course there are a good many old leather-pushers who went to the well too often, lacking some what in wisdom before they even hauled on their first glove.

Nate Siegel of Revere, a hero of New England less than 10 years ago and a one-time welterweight champion of this group of states, is one of the former rank.

Nate isn't president of a bank or an official of any big business organization. But he's engaged in a remunerative occupation, making a decent living and showing no prominent results of the old days and the thrilling war with such welters as Kloby, Shevlin, Doyle and the others who fought and didn't foul.

Nate Now Has a New Title

The head whereon the welter crown once rested now bears a new title, "Feather-Plucking Champion of New England." Nate works for his father, Maurice, who owns the Revere Live Poultry Co.

Nate's father purchases live chickens from farmers all over New England. At the Revere plant the chickens are killed, plucked of their feathers and sent to markets all over the East.

It is an expansive business, the Siegels having plants in Roxbury, Dorchester, Brookline and Nantasket. Double revenue are gained from the labor, for the feathers also sell for a goodly sum as well as the chickens.

Nate works just as hard in business as he did in the ring, sometimes amassing from 16 to 18 hours toil in the course of a day.

Siegel Took Crown From Young Kloby

Siegel took the welterweight title from Young Kloby and held it for two years before Eddie Shevlin came along and stripped him of the crown. And all old-time boxing fans will recall pleasant memories of those days of New England welterweight skirmishes, when the boys fought furiously to victory or defeat and didn't swing any low blows.

Siegel still feels the urge of the uppercut and spends much of his spare time around gymnasiums and tutoring George Ostrow, his latest find, in the rudiments of ring warfare.

And he's mighty proud of his present title, champion feather-plucker, and is as willing to defend it as he was to defend his welter title against all comers when he was an active knight of the padded mitts.

Armour Beats Diegel for Canadian Title

Ancaster, Ont., July 31 (AP)—Leo Diegel's two-year reign over the Canadian open golf championship has ended, and in the Agua Cali professional's place has stepped Tommy Armour, great Scotch stylist.

BABE SMASHES SPEED RECORD

Hotel Brunswick at 11:10, with Ruth riding in a car furnished by the Boston Hupmobile Co. and driven by "Joe" Kendrick and also containing your correspondent.

Trailing in another machine, driven by "Bill" Connell, was a photographer.

With a motorcycle officer in the lead, the parade whirled down through the Old Colony Boulevard to Neponset where three Quincy motor cycle police, with sirens going, picked it up.

They carried it to the Fore River Bridge, where a State trooper took it over, to be joined at Nantasket Junction by another.

Ruth Tells Nick to "Stick 'Em Up"

"Stick Em Up."

Needless to say Nick was tickled to see him, and the pair adjourned to the rocks for a little fanning, before the return to Boston was made at equal speed. He found Nick much improved in health.

On the way down Ruth enjoyed himself immensely, declaring the only other time he had ridden so fast without fear of arrest was once when he was part of an Admiral Byrd procession.

On that occasion he said he was hurrying to see a friend in White Plains, N. Y., and when the Byrd car passed him he swung in behind being permitted to remain when recognized.

OARSMEN ARE READY FOR REGATTA

The 58th annual regatta of the Amateur Association of Oarsmen, in which oarsmen from points west as far as St. Louis will compete for national championships on the Charles river, will begin unofficially this evening when a special event for junior eights will be staged at 6:30 o'clock.

This contest will be a Massachusetts Bay Colony feature, for the three boats entered are West Lynn Boat Club, Shawmut Rowing Club and Springfield Rowing Club.

The invading complement will be brought to full strength today when the Philadelphia contingents from University Barge, Bachelors Barge, Undine and Penn A. C. arrived and take their workout on the Charles.

They will take some practice sprints and paddles up and down the river, studying the lane and the course with the hopes that they will be able to bring back the crowns to the Quaker City.

The two referees, Robert F. Herrick of Harvard and Dr. Robert C. White, commodore of the Schuylkill Navy of Philadelphia, will make their tour of inspection today and satisfy themselves that all is in readiness for Boston's first national regatta since 1915.

Through the courtesy of Technology and Prof Edward L. Bowles of that institution, Boston will introduce a new method of keeping spectators and others informed of the progress of the race on Friday, when the association singles at 3 o'clock will be broadcast from the Tech dirigible, the Mayflower, through WBZ and WBZA.

This will be re-broadcast from amplifiers on both sides of the river, one amplifier in a building on the Esplanade and the other at Technology. Hence those on each side of the river will be able to follow the progress of their friends and favorites.

Ruth's Home-Run Crown in Danger

GEHRIG ONLY 4 BEHIND THE BABE

By BILL CONNELL

Babe Ruth's barrage of homers has been the main event of this baseball season, but the Bam's teammate, Lou Gehrig, threatens seriously to catch and perhaps beat out the Babe in the race for home run honors for the year.

Columbus Lou has hit 32 four base blows now. Two on Tuesday against the Athletics and one yesterday against the Red Sox brought the giant first sacker of the Yanks within four homers of Babe Ruth with a batting average of .366 today Gehrig stands among the best of any hitter in the American League. He has hit safely 166 times, thirty two of these were homers, 10 were triples and 30 were good for two bases each.

Bill Connell

Best of all, from the Yanks' and Gehrig's standpoint, are the 127 runs batted in by the slugger. A third of the season is ahead and the way he is going now, Lou is likely to make a new record of 180 or better tallies knocked home.

Gehrig Helps to Steady Infield

In the field Gehrig is one of the most important members of the New York team. Always one of the hardest workers in the ranks of ball players, Lou has added a bit of pep and fire which was lacking in other years.

He helps keep the team going, and does yeoman work in steadying Lyn Lary at short, and Ben Chapman at second, both of whom are comparatively new as big leaguers.

A few seasons back Gehrig came up to the Yanks after a stage of seasoning following his Columbia career. He soon was hailed as another Ruth, as his hitting power began to show itself. In the race for home runs Gehrig was always close on the Babe's heels.

Then came last year, and a decided slump in Gehrig's play. A desperate fight for safe him toward the end of the year just gave Lou an average for the New York fans and experts all around the league said that Gehrig's ability as a hitter definitely had left him and that he was never again likely to regain it.

Carnera to Fight Chevalier, Aug. 14

Chicago, July 31 (AP)—The proposed "battle of vindication" between Primo Carnera and Leon Chevalier, has been approved and will take place Aug. 14, provided Uncle Sam does not shoo Primo from his shores before that time.

Promoter Mique Malloy gained sanction to put on the bout after the National Boxing Association lifted its ban on Carnera, imposed after the giant Italian's last bout with Chevalier.

Large Crowd to See Lawrence Bout

The largest crowd that has attended a boxing show in the Merrimack Valley since the days of Young Kiely is expected to witness the boxing carnival at O'Sullivan Park Lawrence, next Monday night, when Johnny Farr of Cleveland and Andy Callahan, New England light-weight champion, clash in the feature bout of 10 rounds.

Johnny Farr

The work of both boys is well liked by New England fans who have seen Farr beat Honeyboy Finnegan and Callahan slug his way through Henry Jasco, Jake Zeramby and Sammy Fuller. They are aggressive, hard hitting, fighters and the fans should see a real fight from the first bell.

The matchmaker has arranged a fine list of preliminaries and in the six-round semifinal Jack McCarthy of Boston, recent winner over Bobby Brown of Lowell, will meet the Patent Leather Kid of Haverhill ford. Steve Ketchell of Haverhill clashes with Tom Quigley of Cambridge, Jack Mahoney of Lawrence faces Al Benedette of Manchester and Johnny Dube, Haverhill, opposes Bob Neary, Lowell, in an interesting intercity bout.

CLOUTING COWBOY

"COWBOY JOE" ANDERSON of Cincinnati, O., who meets Dave Shade at Braves Field on Monday night. Anderson and Shade have fought four times, with Anderson winning one and losing two of these melees. Joe is expected to add new thrills to the Hub's finite festivities.

Around the Circuits

Bill Terry, first baseman of the Giants, would be one of the best choices in the league for a valuable player award if that honor had not been abolished.

The limber Terry is hitting and fielding better than ever in his career as a major leaguer and has been a big asset to John McGraw's team all year.

Terry was almost 80 years young before he became a big league ball player. In his early days he was a southpaw pitcher in the South. Later a scout picked him up and he went with the Giants.

When Long George Kelly was sent to the Reds for Roush, in the winter of 1927, Giants' fans figured Terry never would replace the capable Kelly. Terry came along, though, and this year has reached the heights in playing his position.

A remarkable thing about Terry has been his steady improvement in the past couple of years. He is a new, and most patient batter reached their peak in the late twenties. Seldom does one gain after passing that milestone.

Ben Chapman of the Yankees young second baseman, has overcome his wildness in throwing to a great extent. Chapman is gradually becoming a very good ball player and can be rated as a coming star.

Fans often wonder just what the umpires and players say to each other on the field. Sometimes the spectators figure that the remarks are a lot more violent than really is the case.

Babe Ruth had a serious argument with Umpire Brick Owen a few weeks ago. Some time later Ruth was at bat and Umpire Brick called a strike on the Bam, who turned around and held up his hands about 18 inches apart, a foot more than the ball is supposed to be, as that far outside.

The story goes on to tell that Ruth said:

"One got away from me that was just that long," as he finished a tale of a fishing trip. But the fans gave the arbiter a ride just the same.

So poor has been the attendance at St. Louis baseball games for a long time that folks are inclined to credit the report that the Browns are to move to Milwaukee, and operate in that enterprising city's American Association team; in Minnesota now, and that club would probably have to move to another city to continue to make financial progress in the event of the advent of the Browns.

Col. Rupert of the Yankees, President Stoneham of the Giants and President Ivor of the Robins all are opposed to the idea of night baseball. Each says that it will not be tried in his ball park.

Probably one of the biggest handicaps to night ball in the majors would be the cold evenings of the early and late stages of the season. Many of the minor leagues have host schedules, which nicely fit into the night baseball season idea.

Tuffy a True Sportsman, Says Tom Heeney

By HYPE IGOE

New York July 31 (INS)—The "Old Rock," Tom Heeney, had been pounded into submissive dust by a younger and a faster man in Gerald Ambrose Griffith.

Tom was sitting on an old wooden chair in his dressing room at the Queensboro stadium. The bridge of his nose had been fearfully packed and bloated and his left eye was a purple blood.

"Something got in my eye as I sat in my corner for the 10th and I couldn't open it," Tom was saying. "I had been hit on it, of course. I don't want to offer it as an alibi. Mind you, a great, fast, kindly kid whipped me. He deserved to win, but I must say that when I stood up as the bell rang for the 10th I couldn't open my eye without having to close it immediately. Then the referee stopped the bout.

"Ten seconds afterward the eye opened of its own accord, and I could have gone on. It was beastly luck. I didn't want to lose that way, but what a sweet kid Griffith is! As I stood there blinking, hardly able to see at all, he could have walked up and knocked me dead. I appreciate his sportsmanship.

Condition Good, but He Needed Fights

"My condition was good, but I needed fights. Yet I took all he had. I would like to see some of these other fellows take the punches he hit me with on the chin and still fight. I'm not discouraged. I'll attend to Tuffy later on."

Griffith at in he has not cooling out. He was telling Eddie Eagan what he thought of Tom ere-ner.

"I want to say that it was a new sensation to fight a fellow as fair and clean as he battles. No elbows, no thumbs, no low blows. My, what a difference from my last fight with Risko.

"Naturally I'm glad I won, but I'm so sorry that it had to be Tom Heeney. I can't get over his clean fighting. I remember when I fought Hayman; he hit me a dozen times on the breakaway and each time he said, 'Excuse me.'

"Well, I made up my mind to try him on a break. I socked him a beaut and said, 'Oh dear Mister Hayman, I beg your pardon.' That was the end of all hitting on the breaks. He didn't try it again. I hope Tom is not downhearted. He's a good, square shooter."

Shade is expected to arrive to morrow and the two will finish their training at local gyms.

Phineas Dyment of Lewiston Me., former member of the Canadian Mounted Police has been signed as an opponent for John Patrick Cull in his semi-final bout in the eight round semifinal bout.

STATE PROBES MINE STOCK DEALS

Meanwhile Asst. Atty. Gen. Louis H. Sawyer launched a drive against mining companies' promotion plans against which have reached the Boston Evening American, the Boston Better Business Bureau and the attorney general's department.

The Ace Mining Company has been a subject of complaint for a long time because of its promoters, who have been operating for five years and are understood to have reaped thousands in commissions.

The prospect of securing from New York appears to have had the greatest success in flocking among persons of wealth and social prominence.

Stockholders in the Ace Co. complain that they were told the stock would have a split; that dividends would be paid shortly and that it would be listed in the Boston Stock Exchange. None of these have ever materialized, nor have other promises been fulfilled, they say. A list of those in the Ace promotion, power and drive, is said to be:

STOP ORDER

"In accordance with the provisions of section 6A of said chapter, the division duly required from the officers of the Ace Mining Co. further information, necessary, in the division's judgment, to enable it to ascertain whether the sale of such securities would be fraudulent or would result in fraud, the same to be filed on or before June 10, 1930, said date being subsequently extended to June 24, 1930.

"The officers of the said company have failed to submit the information as required within the time specified or thereafter, and have made no satisfactory explanation of such failure and the time for the filing of such information has not been further extended by the securities division.

"NOW THEREFORE, Upon consideration of the premises, the securities division being of the opinion that failure to submit the information required by the division within the time specified or thereafter without satisfactory explanation or extension by the division of the time for filing such information, is prima facie evidence of fraud, and that the sale of the securities of the said company is fraudulent or would result in fraud, hereby makes a finding to that effect.

"ACCORDINGLY, Such securities should not be sold or offered for sale in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Securities Division,
Director."

The Ace Mining Company was incorporated in Arizona May 19, 1922. It has an authorized capitalization of 3,500,000 shares of common stock of $1 par value. Up to Dec. 21, 1927, the company reported 600,000 shares as outstanding and has sold liberally since that date.

The company's properties are located in the Mohawk Mining district and are said to be in Yavapai county, seat of Prescott, Yavapai County, Colorado.

CLAIMS OTHER PROPERTY

The Ace Co. also claims to control the Seven Thirty property, said to be fully equipped with machinery and buildings, and some ore-proof is reported to be on the property, including a 4,000-foot aerial tramway for transporting ore from the mine to a railroad siding.

The company represented that the Seven-Thirty and the Warriors Mark properties had former production records of several hundred thousands of dollars.

In March, 1926, the company entered into a five year contract with a smelting company in Midvale, Utah, but the freight rate was considered prohibitive and the contract was canceled in December of the same year.

Subsequently the company entered into a new contract with a Denver, Col., company, which it was understood would equip its own mill adjacent to the company's property.

FORCED TO CLOSE

This second contract was also canceled because of the high transportation cost. The company said to have a standing contract with a large smelting company at Leadville, Col., 40 miles from the company's mines.

President Carl R. Flanders was reported to have represented that the mines produced 100 tons of lead a day, and that the mills had been forced to close to install new grinders as these in operation had proved unsatisfactory.

The company reported that estimated recovery from the milled ore at the mines was $6 per ton, and that it had blocked 40,000 tons of ore, estimated at $22 a ton, and had in sight more than 200,000 tons of probable ore.

The company represented that it had developed more than 5000 feet of tunnels and shafts and had spent $500,000 accruing from the sale of stock besides putting back into the company property which had been taken out.

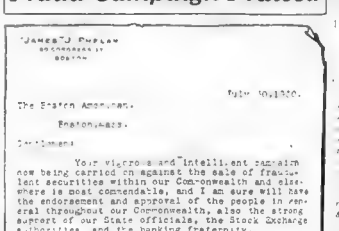
The company further reported that $150,000 worth of lead was taken from one stope in one of the mines, and that $100,000 worth of high grade ores had previously been taken from the same mine at different times.

The officers of the Ace Mining Company are Carl S. Flanders, New York, president; William W. Clarke, Boston, vice-president; Harry E. Whitcomb, Worcester, secretary and treasurer and Nelson Curtis, Jr., Newton Upper Falls, assistant treasurer.

The stock was originally handled by J. W. Hanley & Co., Inc., of 25 Broad st., New York. The head of that firm was John W. Hanley, who at one time was employed by the G. F. Redmond Company, defunct bucket-shop operators.

Difficulties developed between Hanley and the Ace Company, and the Ace stock was later handled by A. L. Aiken & Co., Chamber of Commerce Building, Boston.

Fraud Campaign Praised



JAMES J. PHELAN
60 CONGRESS ST.
BOSTON

July 30, 1930.

The Boston American,
Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

Your vigorous and intelligent campaign now being carried on against the sale of fraudulent securities within our Commonwealth and elsewhere is most commendable, and I am sure will have the endorsement and approval of the people in general throughout our Commonwealth, also the strong support of our State officials, the Stock Exchange authorities, and the banking fraternity.

I am under the impression that we have sufficient laws on our statute books to deal with any and all sales, or attempted sales, of fraudulent securities as they may be discovered by us or brought to the attention of the State officials having to do with the handling of such matters.

Yours very truly,

James J. Phelan

THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST fraudulent stock operations being waged by the Boston Evening American continues to receive the hearty endorsement of leaders of finance and public officials. This letter of commendation was received from James J. Phelan, prominent Boston financier.

A HOME PAPER FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK

BOSTON, THURSDAY, JULY 31, 1930

2d SECTION

HULTMAN OPENS DRIVE ON HUB TONG WAR

Judy Dreams of Rescue by Sparks

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Judith Archer is a country school teacher, 22, and good looking. She wants to be a college professor, while her mother would like her to go in the movies. But Judy loved a double life. She becomes interested in the story of a recent robbery in London. Then she becomes interested in the sailing schedule of an excursion steamer whose captain she knows. She goes to New York and calls on Cap'n Charley Marceau. He suggests Judy and her mother take a trip with him. Judy returns home and on a Spring evening takes a walk with Roy Varman, principal at her school. He kisses her—her first kiss. It enrages Judy, but also opens a new line of thought. She takes passage on Cap'n Charley's ship for her mother and herself. Judy finds herself looking for the radio operator with the sea-green eyes—but he does not remember her.

CHAPTER 8

Darkness was soft, dusky chiffon against the portholes and shore lights were candle gleams, blinking out one after another. Radiance in the great dining salon was a haze through which the other Judy romped gaily.

Judy herself was dreaming again.

She stood on the deck of a burning ship. Tempest howled overhead and the waves were mountains with snow at their summits. People scrambled into lifeboats, crazy with fear. Only she did not move for she was not afraid.

A tall figure stood beside her. He bent down, lifted her in his arms.

"We'll go now into the last boat. Ah, my dear —"

She stood on a white beach which gleamed in the sunshine. Palms waved at her back, in all the world there was only white beach and palms. And a voice.

"Our desert island. You're not afraid? Why, there's adventure here—"

Not Afraid
She Sees Green Eyes

She whispered, "No—not afraid—" and lifted her face. Eyes smiling into her own. Green eyes. . . .

Peggy's voice pierced through Her imaginings and the other Judy vanished. She looked about, a little dazed, a little resentfully.

At the table was a young couple on their wedding trip. They sat close together and blushed a lot and tried to be very matter-of-fact. But they kept forgetting as their hands flew together under the table edge.

There was a woman who looked as if she had stepped from a Watteau fan and spoke as if she had spent all her life on the lower East Side. And an elderly hair from London who appeared surprised at everything.

"Hey, Ju! Hey, hey! Judy Archer!"

Everybody grinned when Judy gave Betsy Rowe the most dignified nod she could manage.

"Past the 12-mile limit—you can tell by Betsy's giggle," said Peggy with a small giggle of her own. "Betsy has one of those 'backless' dresses and two new beaus. She's pretty, though. So alive."

Heard SOS
Saw Him Finger Key

"Of all things"—

"Hush, lamb." Peggy devoted herself to the London couple and Judy dreamed again.

Now she was clinging to the edge of a table which leaned over almost endwise. One who kept tossing lightish hair from his eyes moved his fingers above a key. Quite clearly she could hear the thing hiss. Three short, sharp hisses—three longer ones—three short ones again "SOS. SOS."

The spark died. He raised his

NO QUESTION OF PURITY INVOLVED

Commissioner Bigelow Assigns Purely Technical Ground for Severe Action

A warning that clams from the State of Maine cannot now be legally brought into or sold within Massachusetts was issued today by Dr. George H. Bigelow, state commissioner of public health, in a letter sent to local boards of health.

"We are today circularizing all boards of health in the state to the effect that clams from the State of Maine cannot be legally be brought into or sold within the state," Commissioner Bigelow declared.

LAWS SPECIFIC

"Under existing laws we must obtain information from the proper authority in the exporting state to the effect that the source of shellfish for importation is suitable. Under the Maine law, the Main authorities are able to give such such certification only up to the first of June. Therefore, without such approval from the Maine authorities, further importation is illegal.

"From any data that we have at hand there is no greater amount of pollution of Maine clams than of native clams on the market, so that their importation would not increase the problem of polluted clams.

"However, the law being as it is, we have no option in the matter but to inform the local officials of the matter and to take action ourselves on any information that comes to our attention."

NOTIFY BOARDS

The letter to the boards of health follows:

"It has come to our attention that considerable quantities of clams are being transported into Massachusetts from Maine.

"All certificates issued by the State of Maine for the shipment of shellfish out of that State expired May 31, 1930, and the approval o fthis department of Maine dealers expired the same date. These clams are, therefore, being shipped into this State in direct violation of Chapter 260 o fthe Acts of 1928, which contains the following provision:

"The provisions of this section shall be enforced by local boards of health."

ASKS WORK FOR NAVY YARD

Former United States Senator William M. Butler today telegraphed to Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury:

"The navy yard in Boston is sadly in need of work. Its force has been greatly reduced. I am told that the coast guard is taking over destroyers which are to be reconditioned. I very much hope that at least two of these destroyers may be sent to Boston navy yard for such work as is required on them.

"It is understood that two of the boats will be operated from Boston and work can be readily done under the supervision of the coast guard officers. There are many other advantages in doing the work here. May I hope in the interest of the employment of men at the navy yard that these ships will be sent here."

Blind Man Wins Mercy In Cruelty to Animal Case

Leniency is a rare thing in cruelty to animals cases, but there was a good reason for it this time.

Michael F Barry 45 of Meridian st., East Boston, the defendant, is blind and almost stone deaf.

Barry faced Judge Brown in East Boston court on complaint of Harold G. Andrews, agent for the S. P. C. A. He has an ice route and a boy of 13 leads him around on his daily calls.

Andrews told the court Barry's horse was used while suffering from five sores on its back. After receiving assurances the animal was getting a chance to recover, Judge Brown placed Barry on probation for a year, suspending a $50 fire.

Mrs. Steves claims that her husband gave her the terrier four years and two months ago, while Mrs. French declares that it is her terrier, which d eappeared three years ago.

The dog was taken from Mrs. Steeves Tuesday under a search warrant issued in Woburn court by Assistant District Attorney Wilson, it is understood she intends to start court action to get the animal back again. No action had been filed today, however.

MAPS PLANS FOR CURB ON CHINATOWN VIOLENCE

Twenty Officers Are Sent Into District as a Result of Hatchet Slaying

Drastic action to curb violence in Chinatown will be taken by Police Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman, as the result of the murder of Leong Toon, 30, the commissioner indicated today.

Three more Chinese and two white women of Chinese were arrested as suspects today in the murder, when Police Inspector Edward J. Conway brought in another Chinese for questioning.

Toon, a member of the On Leong Tong, was the first victim known of the latest tong outbreak, and was slain with a hatchet and gunned down the door of his lodgings in Oliver pl. At the same time New York's Chinatown was the scene of another tong slaying.

Ten men in uniform and 10 more in plain clothes patrolled the district paying particular attention to the headquarters of the On Leong Tongs on Oxford st., and the Hip Sing Tongs in Hudson st.

The slaying occurred almost simultaneously with that in New York of Nap Ling, killed at the door of a Mott st. laundry. Police were on the way to the scene when Foo Sock Ling was shot 10 times at a bazaar a few doors away in the presence of two white sights seers.

The police discovered the Toong men had added bombs to their armament shortly after the shooting in New York, when seven Chinese were arrested in Brooklyn, and bombs containing enough nitroglycerins to blow up a city block were seized.

HUB TEACHERS' PAY IS SAFE

Although it will cost an increase of $1,753,958.54 this year to maintain Boston's public schools there is no danger of a cut in teachers' salaries, Alexander Sullivan, business manager of the school committee, stated today.

Sullivan's statement reassured teachers and their friends whose fears were raised by the publication at a special meeting of the school committee yesterday, of figures providing for the needs of the schools.

A total of $22,398,930.71 will be required, of which $20,645,272.25 must be raised by taxation, which is about $10 out of the entire Boston tax rate.

Sullivan, discussing the situation, said:

"We have sufficient funds to run the system this year. Expenditures will not exceed the budget. If by any chance additional funds are needed next year and the Legislature refuses to furnish them, then it may be necessary for the school committee to eliminate certain types of permissive education such as summer schools."

POLICE FREE ASK NEW WAGE CAPTIVE CONTRACT

Samuel Levine, a tailor at 12 School st., worked a couple of hours overtime last night and as a result found himself locked in the building.

The trouble was that Levine lost his key to the front door. Last night he was busy getting out a suit and it was 7:30 before he made his way to the front door and suddenly remembered that the key was missing.

He banged violently on the door when Patrolman Charles Hoar, the route policeman, passed by. The officer groaned the situation and motioned to Patrolman Frank Collins to lend a hand. A crowd gathered as the two officers went into a huddle while Mr. Levine perspired behind the plate glass in the door.

By adroit use of the deaf and dumb language the rescue plans were outlined to the captive. He went back to the second floor and Officer Collins, who is the lighter of the two bluecoats by 60 pounds climbed up the ladder to the fire escape on the second floor while his partner guarded the ladder from slipping. The crowd grew at the rate of 25 spectators a minute.

Carefully and cautiously the captive climbed out a window, and while Officer Collins held his shoulder in a strong grip, his foot felt for the top rung of the ladder. Officer Hoar jeopardized this frail support when he climbed up to guide the tailor's faltering feet and the crowd gathered sympathetically as the ladder swayed. But spectators held the base of the ladder firmly and a mild cheer went up as the rescuers and the prisoner made perfect landings. Levine then resumed his journey to his home in Wellington Hill st., Dorchester.

Roxbury Brothers Battle Seven Hours

With perspiration streaming down their faces, two brothers, Frank, 14, and Albert Zamagni, 12, of 96 Burrell st., Roxbury, dropped their weary arms and rested for the first time in 7 hours and 15 minutes, after establishing what they claim is a new endurance boxing record yesterday.

All the hard knocks when the two boys absorbed during their record breaking attempt were forgotten as they congratulated each other at the end.

Stage Stars Will Appear on Common

Stage stars will take part in the entertainment on the tercentenary tribune on the Common, starting at 8:30 o'clock tonight, under the direction of the Allied Theaters of Massachusetts.

The committee will also sponsor a concert tonight at 8:30 at the Franklin Park playstead, where Henry Gideon will direct the Jewish tercentenary music festival.

AUSTIN GOES TO SPRINGFIELD

Edgar W. Austin, supervisor of the Boston district of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, has been named general secretary of the Family Welfare Association at Springfield.

He succeeds Miss Clark L. McComb, who recently resigned. The Family Welfare Association is the largest organized charitable welfare body in Springfield. Austin will take up his duties with the organization Oct. 1.

He has been with the M. S. P. C. A. since 1917, coming from Buffalo, where he was supervisor of case work for the Buffalo Children's Aid and Protective Society.

Gambling at Fair Banned

As a result of complaints Mayor Patrick J. Duane of Waltham has ordered a carnival on High st. to discontinue operation of gambling devices.

Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips Milk of Magnesia. For the last 50 years and more it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick, so pleasant, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways to learn—now—why this method is superior.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years and more. Only 25c a bottle—any drug store.

Milk of Magnesia has been the registered Trade Mark of Dr. Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

EVERYONE has heard of Bayer Aspirin. Everyone who has ever tried it, knows what it will do. Its quick relief of so many aches and pains is not imagination. Millions carry the handy little Bayer box. So ought you, if subject to sudden colds, headaches, or the pangs of neuritis, rheumatism, etc. But on the shelf at home there should be a bottle of these wonderful tablets. They cost less by the bottle. The bottle is easy to find. Less apt to be empty when there is a sudden need. But whatever quantity you purchase, be sure to get genuine Aspirin. On every package of genuine Bayer Aspirin you will always find the word genuine printed in red.

CENSORS BAN 'THE BIG HOUSE' FROM ALL SCREENS IN STATE OF OHIO

JAIL RIOT CAUSE FOR ACTION

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright 1930 Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, July 31

The Ohio Censor Board has refused to permit "The Big House" to be shown in Ohio. This is surprising news inasmuch as there is certainly nothing immoral, salacious or sensational in this picture.

J. L. Clifton, director of education for Ohio, sent a letter to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in which he very definitely blames the recent prison uprising in Columbus for the Ohio ban.

In part, Mr. Clifton says:

"We appreciate your assistance and competence in presenting all the facts concerning this picture. We have decided that for the present we shall ask you to withdraw the picture and resubmit it to us later when the prison situation is more nearly normal."

E. B. Hatrick, head of Cosmopolitan Pictures, who is in Hollywood at present, says that although there were prison outbreaks in Pennsylvania, Colorado and New York, there wasn't a single unfavorable criticism in these states. The lesson in "The Big House" is unmistakable, Mr. Hatrick says and Cosmopolitan has been commended by various educators for the manner in which the story is handled. One can only wonder if our [illegible] Ohio censor [illegible]

Rin, Tin, Tin, the Polish Actor, once said: "Any dog can be trained to do anything. It is only all depends on how you treat him." Rin, Tin, Tin has a lot to do with the success of Jean Harlow in "Hell's Angels." Jean was getting ready to put a picture on there is nothing else in his mind, not even a game of bridge. Irving Cummings has been named to direct Ronald Colman and David Torrence, who played the Scotch detective with such finesse and humor in "Raffles," will do another of his best characterizations. Looks as if Sam intended to keep as much of the "Raffles" cast intact as possible for Frederick Kerr and David Torrence were in the cast of Mr. Cummings, one of Fox ace directors, has been borrowed by the Goldwyn company for this coming Lonsdale satire.

MARY PICKFORD is in a dilemma. Sam Taylor cannot see "Secrets" for her. He believes that Mary should make a rollicking comedy, principally because he likes her better in comedy and because he feels the country being in a depressed condition heavy drama should be abandoned for the time being. Doug Jas Fairbanks, who saw the scenes already made of "Secrets," was enthusiastic, and told Mary she was all wrong in being disappointed with the picture. Mary, who has every confidence in Doug's opinion, is now wondering whether he is right. At all events if she makes "Secrets" it will not be with Sam Taylor; it will be with another director. The question now is whether to make the comedy with Sam Taylor first and "Secrets" with another director later or vice versa.

DOZENS OF LETTERS are received by this writer asking for information about Blanche Sweet: Where is she? When can they hope to see her in a picture? I am, therefore, delighted to be able to say that Blanche has been chosen to play the other feminine lead in "The Silver Horde," and here is a case I think is interesting. Instead of the usual jealousies that exist between girls, Evelyn Brent, who plays the other feminine lead in "The Silver Horde," recommended Blanche for the part.

Blanche Sweet

"It's a good part, Blanche," said Evelyn. "In fact, I like it even better than my own."

That is what I call being a good sport. We could stand a little more of it in Hollywood.

A STORY THAT IS SO interesting it sounds fictional is told about Donald Novis, the boy who sang just a bit in "Hull Dog Drummond." Young Novis has a gorgeous tenor voice and when he made a test for Evelyn Laye's picture, Lady Arthur Hammerstein heard him. Hammerstein went back to New York and after any number of auditions he still remembered the Novis boy's voice. Yesterday he long-distanced Ruth Collier, who is Novis' manager, and engaged him for the lead in "The Bird of Paradise" which opens in two weeks in New York. The lad is now on his way East wondering if he will wake up and find it all a dream.

MISS BRAZIER IS CHAMPION FILM FAN

Friends of Miss Marion H. Brazier of Boston, are boosting her as the champion movie fan of the country. They say she sees every film in every house, and has film facts at her finger tips. Miss Brazier is a veteran newspaper woman, and has long been a stage and screen fan. Among her personal friends in olden days were Charlotte Cushman, Clara Morris, and Lester Wallack. She is so much interested in pictures that she has written a book, and numerous special articles about them.

Miss Brazier is declared to be one of the closest observers of screen product. One of her interests is the patriotic work of various organizations, and she is quick to note whether the flag is hung properly in sets.

Miss Brazier says she does not believe in censorship of the films, claiming that it is unnecessary, un-American and un-constitutional. She says she is a devotee of the movies.

"I love them," she says, "for several reasons apart from their entertaining value. They are inspiring, educational, take us away from ourselves, divert the mind from troubles, are a boon to the deaf (as music is to the blind), are consoling to the mentally ill or those in sorrow and to the tired business man. They also drive away the blues.

"For a nominal sum we are taken to various parts of the world in the most unexpected spots and our own country is visualized as never before. The late Theodore Roosevelt once called the screen 'God's great picture book of nature.' More geography can be taught the youth of the land in a short reel than can be gained from the text books in a month.

"Then, too, human nature is illustrated, patriotism aroused, love of dumb animals, mother love emphasized, many lessons taught."

TEAM MET IN STRANGE WAY

Marks and Ethel, comedians at the Scollay this week, owe their present partial fame to a queer twist of fate. It was some years ago that Ben appeared at a New York booking office in search of a partner, and selected Ethel from among a great many young women there. After he spoke her he asked her name, and where she lived.

When she told him where she lived, Ben looked up at her in amazement for she had given him an address but two doors from his own house. Further questioning revealed that they had been neighbors for seven years, and neither had ever seen one another in all that time.

Their comedy act is scoring very heavily at the Scollay. They have been on the stage some 13 years.

EWING EATON

MISS EATON, formerly of "Artists and Models" will be one of the main attractions at the Keith-Albee starting Saturday.

SCORES IN PLAY ON CAPE

Edith Barrett and Henry Hull played to standing room at their opening at the Cape Playhouse, Dennis, Cape Cod, in "Michael and Mary," the Milne comedy in which they recently competed a season at the Charles Hopkins Theater. Mr. Hull and Miss Barrett will be seen next week in Sir J. M. Barrie's "Mary Rose," directed by George Somnes and with a supporting cast comprising Spring Byington, Edward Rigby, Leonard Mudie, Judith Lowry, and Aldrich Bowker.

Preceding 'Mary Rose' there will be a production of "Great Moments," a one-act play by Raymond Moore, owner and director of the Cape Playhouse and Cape Cinema. The four roles in it will be played by Bettie Davis, Burford Hampden, Emily Graham and L'Estrange Millman.

Eleanine Lank, who appeared most recently on Broadway in "Follow Thru" and "Animal Crackers," will have an important role in "Ship Shapes" the new revue which will be produced on August 25 at the Cape Playhouse. Dennis, Cape Cod. Inter headed for Boston and New York, Peter Jorsy, whose historical impersonations were a feature of last season's "Cape Cod Follies," will also be in the cast of "Ship Shapes."

MOVIE "SHORTS" FIND FAVOR WITH PUBLIC AT PRESENT

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

THE MAKING OF THE "SHORTS" which vary your film programs is one thing, but their selection is an art in itself. The exhibitor gives a multitude of them the once-over in the exchange projection rooms; here and there he will do his picking, much as a naughty child looking ma's goodies over on the pantry shelves. The exhibitor takes the best for his purpose. He has to think of balance for his bill, of comedy values, and variety as well. Particularly in building up that program, must he be certain to place his features, big and little, properly. The wise exhibitor has his thinking cap on all the time, long hours of the day and night, all for the purpose of entertaining his patrons. His aim is to give them the best possible.

* * *

Exhibitors know well that the motion picture public was never better posted than today on what they want. This public is our "shopping"; they make their selections for themselves. They read, they study the advertisements in the newspapers, then they make a decision. This is particularly true of the women; which means that through mother or sister or daughter, the whole family is "shopping." For the woman's choice is the one which directs the family's footsteps theaterwards. After all is said and done, the most successful producers are those bearing in mind that the home is the unit of great appeal. Response from the home makes for box office success. This explains why that comparatively rare bird out of Hollywood, the "real," always "clicks" in the shekels. It is the picture that strikes deep in its appeal, and it is the one the producers like best to make, most of them.

EVERY NOW AND THEN, along comes one of those remarkable film "shorts" to thrill us deeply. The Germans have long been making them, and often the idea has come to us why some persons didn't gobble them up and "clean up" some coin on this side of the big pond. One such was that marvelous little film, "The Killing and the Killer" (or was the title reverse English on "Killing and Killer?") It was one of the finest pictures ever made, and one of the most lonely parade. It's almost eerie in its audience effect. That it was hashed and rehashed many times in that country proves its rare merit. It served as an independent "short" first of all. Then it was cut into that superb feature Eagle picture, "The Letter." It played the "In again, gone again, Finnigin" role several times in between; the last time it bobbed up was when it was "lifted" almost bodily into a more or less phony jungle film.

* * *

ALL OF WHICH leads up to our calling attention to a magnificent "short" on the Loew's State bill this week. It is titled "Peas and Cues." It will surprise you, it will fascinate you. Seeing is believing; we guarantee that. It is so good that there will be oh's and ah's from the audience as it progressed, and then an outburst of real applause at the finish. Not often is even a feature picture good enough to elicit so much handclapping. Here's hopin' more of these classy specials may be forthcoming!

WILL PRESENT SATIRE

The Berkshire Playhouse, under the direction of Alexander Kirkland and F. Cowles Strickland, at Stockbridge, will turn to the work of the Italian dramatist, Luigi Chiarelli, in its production of "The Mask and the Face" next week. The play, a satirical comedy of the modern Italian school, has been adapted for English speaking audiences by Chester Bailey Fernald.

When the play was first produced at the Everyman Theater, London, it was so well received, both by critics and the public, that it ran for 232 performances. At the end of 1924, the year in which it first appeared on the English stage, Brook Pemberton brought it to New York with a cast which included William Faversham, Catherine Willard, Robert Montgomery, Ann Winston and Horace Braham.

The Playhouse cast will be headed by Aline MacMahon, Hugh Buckler, and Richard Hale; it will also include Leo Carroll, George Coulouris, Margaret Love, Karl Swenson and Theodosia Bruning, who has returned for her third season with the Berkshire Players.

New Fame

LILA LEE

LILA CHALKS up another success to her long list in "The Unholy Three," Lon Chaney's latest hit which is now at Loew's Orpheum.

Majestic Pictures Sign "Talkie" Cast

"Today," Abraham Shomer's stage drama, is to be made into a talker by Majestic Pictures Corp., with William Nigh as director. Conrad Nagel has been borrowed to play in the picture, which will be made at the Tec Art studio. Other players gathered for it are Katherine Dale Owen, Carmel Myers and George Fawcett.

THE THIRD AND LAST of the tea and garden parties held in the old-fashioned gardens of the Essex Institute has been written into the annals of Salem, but the picture will remain with us, a sweet reminder of days not so rushed when tea and conversation was an art. It was like going home to get a grandmother's blessing before dashing off to more adventurous things.

MRS. HENRY P. BENSON and her committee should be congratulated for perpetuating this charming custom and for the gracious and hospitable courtesy with which it was carried out. Invitations were sent out to Manchester, Beverly, Beverly Farms, Magnolia, Gloucester, Prides Crossing, Rockport and Cape Ann residents and the attendance rivaled that of the two previous garden parties held recently.

SEVERAL OF THE YOUNG social set, attired in old-fashioned costumes of their great grandmothers day, added charm and interest to their duties of serving and guiding the guests about the museum. Miss Rebecca Benson's ivory satin-striped tulle over satin, trimmed with touches of pink, was very lovely; Miss Lucy Rantoul's delicate beauty was set off by her blue-flowered taffeta with blue bands, and her friend, Miss Mary Barbour, was most attractive in rose-satin. The hat worn by Mrs. Daniel Low was amusing, but very picturesque, and her green taffeta gown was so long; little Jane Lehan might have stepped out of an old album with her tiny parasol and poke bonnet. Others were Miss Virginia Joyce, in pink taffeta, and Mrs. F. V. Brock, in yellow tulle.

Many Descendants of Original Essex Club's Roster Attend

A REAL OLD QUILTED satin costume was worn by Mrs. John Daland, whose ancestors sold the Daland home on which sits the Essex Institute now stands. It was interesting to view the old manuscripts and log books of the institute, as many of the descendants of the original members of the Essex Historical Society in 1821 were among those present Wednesday afternoon; names which mean so much in the history of our state, Daniel, Bowditch, Saltonstal, Barbour, etc

THE POURERS WERE MRS. SEWELL H. FESSENDEN, Mrs. Neal Rantoul, Mrs. Jacob Loose, Mrs. Keith Merrill, Mrs. Robert Hale Bancroft, Mrs. Thomas Barbour, Mrs. Philip S. Sears, Mrs. William H. A DUTCH URN presented to the Museum of Fine Arts by Miss Ellen S. Bullfinch, granddaughter of Charles Bullfinch, architect and designer of the State House, the Capitol at Washington, and many other noted buildings, is one of the most important exhibits in the collection of historical silver on display at the museum. It is a masterpiece of miniature architecture in itself and bears the inscription: "To Charles Bullfinch, Esq. Presented by Catholics of Boston, Jan. 1, 1806." It has two square-shaped handles and is topped by a pair of doves which are symbolic of the peaceful relations existing between religious sects of that time. Bullfinch was a personal friend of John Cheverus, first Catholic bishop of Boston. Through his enterprise the Church of the Holy Cross, Boston's first Catholic church, was built in 1803

Two thousand members of the Boston Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization anticipate the annual summer dance of the unit which takes place next Tuesday evening at Pemberton Inn.

Raquel Decides to Say No to Eric, and Flees to Deauville Gaieties

CHAPTER 55

When Alphonse Courbet, studying his collection of jades—conceded to be the finest in current annals of art—heard the tinkle of a telephone on his night desk, he sensed impending change.

It must be. He had scarcely slept since his return from New York weeks ago. Raquel Rojas—"le bis noir" now about to be transplanted from his own exotic garden into an English countryside. Raquel was lost to him.

Always he had been able to get that which he desired. If it eluded him for a while, he waited.

In the end he won. He was, for example, disdainful of marriage. He had never married. Yet he had known many beautiful women.

The treasures of art he coveted had come, eventually, into his hand. These were the passion of his soul. Women were but a passing fancy. He loved beauty in all its forms. Women were but one expression of beauty. A beautiful pose that died down quickly into a hollow echo of itself. When beauty died, the medium through which it had been expressed held no more interest for him.

Wild Rose
Pauline Was One

There was Pauline, in New York. Once she was a wild rose, fresh and tender and flushed. How quickly she had faded. She had become a nuisance—a whining, whimpering, fawning creature that sickened him.

"Raquel," he said, and hurried to answer the tinkling bell. "In life I have found eternity of beauty. I would hunger for her always, even though she came to be the living image of the one she calls her specter, the Incredible Basset."

Raquel was grateful that Alphonse showed neither surprise nor resistance to her request that she be allowed to go on to Deauville immediately.

"The car will come for you before night," he said. "Have only the things for your immediate needs packed. I will send an entirely new selection to your hotel in Deauville. And for Miss Greta, too. The chauffeur will receive full instructions."

"But you"—wistfully — "I thought you were going, too, for a holiday."

The lines on his long tapering hands stood out like blue welts. His brow was damp. The cords of his throat worked.

She wanted him. She needed him. He had not schemed, agonized, for naught. He had given her her head with this

The Beauty Box

—By HELEN FOLLETT—

EXCESSIVE perspiration is often due to tension and nervousness. The cure for it is found in the salt glow—rubbing the body with moistened salt, followed with a cold spray—in general hygienic measures, and in the application to the armpits of liquids and powders that act upon the sweat glands.

In the merry spring months, when housecleaning goes on apace the fingernails have a tough row to hoe. After a session with hook shelves that haven't been disturbed for a year or so, fingernail enamel take on a gloom that becomes established. Therefore the wise manicure will have her disgusted confidante for her one dram of oxalic acid and two ounces of rosewater. She will twist some cotton around an orangewood stick, dip the stick into the solution and plunge it under the nail edges; it will remove every particle of dust and grime, leaving a clear white border.

fellow after that, a gentle Way the girl's face for peace, but only roasted in the woman. It was enough to sacrifice a king, a sovereign's ransom. Would he immolate the senses on the altar of a tradition?

He believed he would not. Her appetite for love, for the full of life was a notable thing. He could not be expected to live in the past. She was from 72 away from Stafford.

"I'll be down, later," he said, casually.

She sounded a bit hurt by his lack of enthusiasm.

Raquel had already settled into the linen, gray cushions.

"It will be a glorious ride," she said, lightly.

"Blimey!" said Greta, settling into the other corner. "Throwing away a thirty-five dollar bill gives you a single thrill. You just toss it overboard and wait for the splash."

"There's no use weeping about it," said Raquel, coolly.

"No, but it's the most pretty rough on 'is lordship, giving him the gate this way and slamming it in his face."

To Hate Her
Raquel Leads Eric

"It is better so. He will hate me. He is that sort. Anything so lacking in delicacy, in decency, especially on the part of a woman, he will find detestable."

"You want him to hate you?"

"Yes. It will be easier, for him. His suffering will be acute, but short-lived. He will go back to his Cynthia. He could love her. Down deep. His feeling for me is different. It is like the unreal emotion born of a drug."

"You mean you drug 'em?" teased Greta, seeing Raquel was likely to fall into the doldrums again.

Raquel smiled wistfully.

"Not exactly," she said. "At least I don't mean to. I could have built Eric's passion into something deeper, more permanent. But to do it would have meant walking through dust, breathing, eating, thinking dust. I think that no position, however high, is worth that price."

As they glided along the open road that unwound like a white ribbon through green fields, a small boy ran toward them waving a bunch of wild flowers in his grimy hand.

Raquel signaled the chauffeur to stop the car. She took a hand ful of francs from her bag without regard to denomination and held them toward the child, who gathered in the flowers. He stood stupefied for a moment. It was fortune that had befallen him. Then, with a shrill cry of joy he started pell-mell toward a thatched cottage down a lane.

"What's that about grooms?" asked Greta.

"Nothing. I was just thinking about a little boy I once knew."

They lunched in the ancient Inn of William the Conqueror, with its old-fashioned garden of sweet herbs and its great kitchen gleaming brass and copper.

At the last moment Greta came out of the kitchen with a large copper kettle, which she presented proudly to Raquel, already waiting in the car.

"It's stunning," said Raquel, "but what are you going to do with it?"

"Ha ho cacs," purled Greta, swinging the kettle so that its sides caught the light of the sun. The main thing is that I got it. I practically had to blast, though. Say these frogs are tough eggs to open"

It was a delightful place at once. It was gay. Bright globes of scarlet geraniums and patches of pink fuchsia trailed in the window-ledges of the quaint timbered building. One lunched and dined on a broad open veranda level with the garden.

"Gosh!" said Greta, "get a load of that moon. We gotta get some sea-going bathing-suits, dearie. I'll simply froth at the mouth if I have to sit under an umbrella and look pretty for the papes."

"Wait a minute, dearie. Hold everything. I think I see a himbo I know. Back in the old home town. Whoopsie. I find 'er, no matter where they hide."

What's in Fashion?

Fur Coats—Lovelier Than Ever!

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, July 31—Good news for you who choose your furs in August. Fashion's favorite furs for this fall and winter are certainly lovelier than ever!

As we see them, the fur coats of 1930 to 1931 are as distinctive in silhouette as the cloth coats. They're cut, seamed and manipulated much like cloth. So good to look at!

The furs are supple and pliable. All the wooden dullness has disappeared. At last you can be warm . . . and still look . . . like you like to look—and not all wrapped up.

We said these new fur silhouettes are distinctive. So they are. Individual. Beautiful. But not exaggerated or extreme. These new fur coats are wearable. Make no mistake about that.

Some of the more informal coats even have belts to indicate the waistline . . . as dresses have. But there are button closings, too. Or none at all . . . just as you may prefer them.

Interesting Collars

You're going to find lots of interesting things in collars and sleeves. Things that give the coat a look of luxury and richness.

Shawl collars, for instance, that can be worn in several different ways. As a high, standing collar, perhaps . . . or crushed softly about the face . . . or dropped to give the effect of a shoulder cape.

Then there are scarf collars . . . these are great for colder days when they can be tied in casual style. Or you can throw them round your neck, or cross them loosely in front to give a jabot effect.

New Cuffs

While plain, straight sleeves are not as smart as ever, there are new ideas in cuffs that you'll find quite different. The pouch type, for example. And the double cuff.

Brown is going to be an important color for 1930 fur coats. Why? Because women have found it makes a good background for a bright colored dress.

And there are lovely shades of brown. In fact, that smart, soft, pliable fur that can be cut and seamed and manipulated any way at all. In caracul, lamb the ever popular mink, and nutria—or lapin dyed to look like nutria.

Flat Furs

All the flatter furs are important . . . because they can be made to look more like cloth coats. Muffed caracul, mole, and broadtail make some of the loveliest coats. And seal, of course, continues a favorite. But there's a brown shade of seal that is new this year.

Then there's wool kid and goat, and muskrat have been made into good-looking informal coats. And galyak is the fur that thinned so many spring coats is a newcomer.

For early furs you'll like caracul. And often this year it's made to look like the higher priced Persian lamb, summe and astrakhan.

We've had sketched three coats that show the varying variations of the new mode. The straight-line lapin coat that an body can wear.

In Darkness

Deep-rooted in man a thought
A dread of darkness dwells,
From primal ages brought
Its shade casts sombre spells.
Yet in the end we find
This fear a foolish thing,
For darkness can be kind
Past all imagining.
In darkness music rings
Most magical, most clear;
By night the bird that sings
Charms most the listening ear
And through the velvet dark
Gardenia and rose
While starry fleets embark,
Most potent sweets disclose
They know the toil and schemes
That over full man's breast:
But darkness flowers with dreams

Rapid Growth In Industry on Pacific Coast

Companies Transacting World Business Build Plants

By B. C. Forbes

B. C. Forbes

In the West, July 31—Population is increasing very rapidly on the two coasts of the North American Continent. This is true of both the United States and Canada. The percentage gain along the Pacific is astounding.

Industry likewise is developing enormously, following the customary economic evolution. And this growth is destined to continue probably at an even accelerated rate.

Corporations doing a nation-wide or an international business are more and more resorting to building branch plants on the Pacific. Not only is the nearby market constantly multiplying but trade with the Orient, as well as with Latin-America, is steadily expanding despite all the manifold and grave troubles which have beset that teeming part of the world.

* * *

That question is answered interestingly by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, one of the best managed in America. While the Chamber has Seattle and the Puget Sound district particularly in mind, much of what it says applies to other coast sections. The industries sought are described thus.

"1—Industries, the operation of which depend to some degree upon the natural resources of the Pacific Northwest and Alaska, such as woodworking, furniture and related industries; processing of agricultural and dairy products into foodstuffs; products of copper, lead and zinc; paper and paper pulp; woolen textiles; china and glass ware; glues and fertilizers.

"2—Industries to supply the rapidly increasing local demands for commodities not now manufactured in quantities in the Pacific Northwest, as carpets, rugs, linoleum, window glass, hardware and tools, garden implements, dairy, poultry and apiarists' supplies, steel and copper wire, iron and steel pipe, aluminum ware, galvanized ware, coil springs, automobile tires and accessories, metal furniture and fixtures, sanitary fittings, rubber goods, asbestos products, linen, boots and shoes, soaps, silk goods, hosiery, toys, canoes, radio cabinets, cigars and tobacco, malted milk, bottle caps.

"3—Industries which depend upon the Orient and countries of the Pacific rim for their raw materials, such as silk, wool, jute, hemp, rattan, ramie, mohair, kapok, rubber, tin, hides, spices, raw sugar, hardwoods, vegetable oils, copra, camphor and other gums, soya beans, peanuts, chocolate and many other commodities which can be brought to Seattle at extremely low cost, manufactured and then exported or shipped to the consumer in America.

"4—Industries which can depend upon the Orient and countries of the Pacific rim for a market, such as manufacturers of industrial machinery, agricultural and road building machinery, railroad equipment, outboard motors, chemicals, automobile tires and accessories, batteries, electrical machinery and apparatus, wire, hardware, steel strapping, woolen goods, shoes, office equipment, soap, notions, etc.

"5—Industries allied to the major industries now operating in this territory as manufacturers of products related to the paper and pulp industry, fisheries, logging and lumbering, shipbuilding, mining and aeronautics."

The enthusiasm of Far Westerners for their home cities could advantageously be imbibed by those of us living elsewhere. Every citizen is a salesman for his town. This not only builds up but it makes the atmosphere congenial. None of us likes perpetual growling, fault-finding, back-biting. Cheerfulness is an elixir of life.

MERGER MOVES IN U. S. COPIED OVERSEAS

By FRANK H. MELOON

Merger movements as originated in the United States are being copied overseas. Recently attention was called in this column to the spread of the public utility merger idea in Europe. The latest in England is the grocery chain, which was the pioneer in this country when the Hartford brothers started the "A. & P." in New England before the Civil War.

Manager Hugh Butler of the Boston division of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce tells us that a combine which will have a capital of approximately $55,000,000 and will include between 5000 and 6000 retail stores is planned by several of the leading grocery chains in Great Britain as a further step in the rationalization of distribution, according to a report received in the Department of Commerce from Assistant Trade Commissioner R. S. Charles at London.

Investment rails are reported passing into strong hands as a result of recent declines. The argument is heard in State st. that misleading comparisons are being made of rail earnings for June, because a year ago these were augmented during that month by large back mail payments. New England railroads alone received $5,000,000 in back mail payments in June a year ago.

Volume of business transacted in the United States alone by Drug Incorporated is estimated at approximately $160,000,000 a year in an article in "Dividends," monthly organ of Kidder, Peabody & Co. Including the shares issued in connection with the absorption of the Vick Chemical Co., Drug Incorporated now has outstanding 3,501,449 shares. It is believed that current earnings are running at a rate in excess of $6 per share per annum, a comfortable margin over the $4 dividend.

Shades of George Washington and his Continentals are recalled by the announcement of the 150th anniversary of Walter Baker & Co., Inc., Boston, manufacturers of cocoa and chocolate. An historical study of this subsidiary company just completed by the General Foods Corporation reveals that in 1765 Dr. James Baker, a physician, learning that a young Irish immigrant, John Hannan, had experience as a chocolate maker, offered to set him up in that business. The industry started in the corner of a grist mill which stood on the site of the present Baker property in Dorchester.

In 1780 the company was reorganized and as Baker's Chocolate embarked on its career of 150 years of successful business. During the Revolution Washington's soldiers on their way to the battle of Dorchester Heights stopped at the mill for chocolate refreshments.

Sinclair to Call Stocks and Bonds

Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corp. will shortly call for redemption its $15,177,500 8 per cent preferred stock and issue of three-year 6 per cent series D bonds outstanding to amount of $15,462,500. Bonds mature Sept. 1, 1930. Although Sinclair will receive $72,500,000 cash from Standard Oil of Indiana in payment for its one-half interest in Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. and Sinclair Pipe Line Co. it is not believed that any of this money will be used to pay off bonds and probably none for retiring preferred stock.

Reserve Board Governor Warns on Mistakes of 1929

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

New York, July 31—Roy A. Young, governor of the Federal Reserve Board has emerged as the most significant and most forceful personality now in the system. His latest move is to criticize member bankers for failing to co-operate before the crash of the bull markets in putting down the brakes on excessive speculation.

Gov. Young insists that bankers should look beyond the safety of individual collateral loans to broader questions of national economic policy. If bankers were to take a broader view of their responsibilities, Mr. Young, who learned the banking business in Minneapolis, believes that business and finance could be stabilized.

"A bank may know that its security loans are perfectly safe and can be liquidated at any time, yet it may recognize that too rapid growth in these loans endangers the stability of the nation's business. The bank itself may not be extending loans to the market for its own account, but may be the agent for correspondents, banks and others who may be pouring funds in dangerous volume into the market. A bank may not be indebted to Reserve Bank except occasionally and for short periods, but it may be a purchaser of federal funds from other banks, and may be aware that in the aggregate there is a diversion of Reserve Bank credit to speculative uses.

"Brokers' loans, and security loans in general, are safe only because there is an instant market for the collateral, large sales of the collateral, though they may not impair the solvency of a particular bank, result in a drop in value of more than one-half of the bank credit outstanding in this country; and there is no telling when such a drop may terminate and remember also that resources of the Federal Reserve System are not inexhaustible; that another three weeks like those last autumn may come when these resources will be more nearly used up, and that absolute security and confidence can be obtained only by so conducting financial affairs of the nation as to prevent violent expansions and contractions rather than merely to alleviate their consequences.

"We bankers have a responsibility beyond our own balance sheets for the general course of events; we must look beyond the safety of collateral offered us for a loan to the safety of the aggregate volume of collateral we know is being offered for loans at all banks; when we see an unhealthy development getting under way we must not only protect our own immediate situation, but must take a broader view and act with reference to the interest of the entire community. When a collapse occurs we all suffer in loss of business, even though we may not have to write off large losses on account of bad loans. The banker profits from general prosperity and suffers from general depression, and can, therefore, reconcile a course of action taken with a view to preservation of general business stability with the utmost hard-boiled attitude toward life that some of us like to boast of in public."

Governor Young is in a good position to draw a moral concerning the collapse, for he and his associates on the Federal Reserve Board warned the public many months before the panic of the danger of current speculative excesses.

Mr. Young now points to the danger of selfish particularistic banking as opposed to banking in the interest of the broader community. Of course, the failure of the Federal Reserve restrictive policy resulted not so much from the lack of co-operation of bankers, especially of large city bankers, as from the loans made by non-banking bootleg lenders who rushed into the market to take advantage of high interest rates. Mr. Young indicated that the banks should not have acted as agents for such bootleg loans in unlimited amounts.

MERGER JOINS INVESTORS

This latest proposed step in Yosemite expansion program will increase assets of the corporation and its affiliated companies by approximately $1,750,000.

"Such an increase in controlled assets would enable the management of Yosemite more broadly to diversify its investments," Mr. Thomas said.

In commenting on the proposed acquisition, Grover O'Neill, president of Joint Investors, Inc., said.

"The affiliation of our corporation with Yosemite Holding Corporation should materially benefit stockholders of both organizations."

Corn and Wheat in New Turn Upward

Chicago, July 31 (AP)—Both corn and wheat prices took an early upward swing today. Wheat values were influenced by corn strength, by comparative firmness of the Liverpool market and by assertions that export business yesterday was much larger than had been acknowledged. Opening at ¼ to 1¼c advance, corn later scored additional gains. Wheat started unchanged to 1c higher, and afterward rose all around.

Cotton Is Steadied After New Selling

New York, July 31—Cotton opened today at a decline of 4 to 9 points under a renewal of yesterday's selling movement. New October contract sold off to 12.22 and March to 12.72 during the first few minutes, making net declines of about 10 to 12 points on the active positions, but there was some trade buying and covering at the new low prices and the market steadied up a few points.

GILLETTE SOARS IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Gillette Safety Razor was a strong and active feature in today's trading on the Boston Stock Exchange. This issue regained all of the ground lost in the early part of the week soaring around 5 points.

Inactive carriers showed marked strength. Boston & Maine D stamped skyrocketed 6 points while Boston & Providence jumped nearly 4 points. Boston Elevated second preferred was up well over 2 points.

Losses of a point or more were shown by United Fruit, Stone & Webster, General Alloys and Shawmut. New River preferred slumped 6 points to a new low figure. United Shoe cancelled all of Wednesday's 1¼ gain.

Edison Electric had an 8-point loss in early trading and then rallied. American Telephone gained 1½. Torrington added a like amount and General Electric was a point higher.

A petition of the Gardner Electric Light Co. for authority to issue 2500 additional shares of capital stock of the par value of $100 per share was filed today with the State Department of Public Utilities.

Pointing out that rates on three months commercial paper at present in the neighborhood of 3 per cent against 7 per cent just a year ago clears the way for a business recovery, Kidder Peabody & Co., in their August book "Dividends" discuss present business conditions in the light of similar periods in the past.

They show that the past 50 years of our financial history has seen a series of fluctuations above and below the normal line of industrial growth. These fluctuations have varied in maximum intensity from 5 per cent to nearly 30 per cent from this normal and in duration from three months to three years.

The figure of 10 per cent below normal, which is approximately a measure of present conditions, is higher than 7 and lower than 8 of similar periods in the past.

Further, they state, we have now been experiencing sub-normal business for from 7 to 8 months, comparing with an average of 16 months for all of the dips below normal of the past 50 years. Of these depressions, which are 14 in number, 6 have been shorter and 8 longer than the current depression to date.

EARNINGS AT RECORD PEAK

General Refractories Co. is one of the really depression-proof industrials whose 1930 earnings are estimated to exceed those of last year, even though the 1929 earnings of $8.51 per share were at an all-time peak according to an analysis by members of the New York Stock Exchange.

Earnings during the first quarter of 1930, $2.53, were a high record for the eighth consecutive quarter, notwithstanding seasonal variations which existed in the past.

Although delay in shipments during the latter part of June will make the second quarter fall under the results for the first quarter, the analysis states that, partly because of the unusually large carryover of finished goods from the April to June period, earnings for the third quarter should be very large and could materially exceed the $2.53 showing of the first quarter. Unfilled orders on July 1 are reported as 160 per cent greater than a year ago.

One of the principal reasons for the continued growth of earnings has been the fact that, although the company's present business with the iron and steel industry is greater in amount than ever, the proportion of this business to the total handled is now less than 50 per cent.

Childs Earnings in Half Year Up

New York, July 31—Childs Co. reports for six months ended June 30 net of $668,329 after interest, depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equivalent, after dividend requirements on 7 per cent preferred to $1.36 a share on 362,357 no-par shares of common, against $420,343 or 67 cents a share on 362,191 shares in first half of 1929.

Net for quarter ended June 30 was $291,096 after above charges, equal to 56 cents a share on 362,357 common shares, against $377,232, or 80 cents a share on 362,334 shares in preceding quarter, and $260,326 or 47 cents a share on 362,191 shares in June quarter of previous year.

Water Works Has Increased Profit

This is equal to $3.82 a share on the 1,698,511 shares of common in the 12 months ended June 30, against $3.94 a share on 1,467,750 shares in the preceding 12 months.

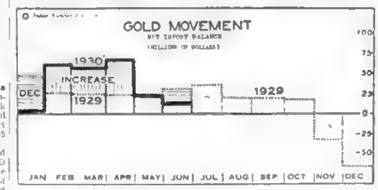
Gold Movement Started



Net Gold Import Balance

By HARLOW PETERS
(Irving Fisher Service)

The beginning of a gold export movement is in sight. In February, March, and April the United States was holding huge amounts of gold imported from abroad; this balance of import gold over export was greatly reduced in May, and was brought appreciably lower in June, to show a decrease from the balance for the same month a year ago.

That it is better to reduce the amount of bullion held at this time may seem curious to the lay mind, but such is the case. A more even distribution among world countries will react to the advantage of the United States in that it will form the basis for increased business activity abroad, with a consequent gain in buying power to purchase American goods.

Reducing the amount of gold here also reduces the possibility of another period of domestic inflation in the near future.

There is only one fly in the ointment. The business depression here has greatly curtailed the demand for money to use in commerce, and since the depression is world-wide there is more than a faint possibility that the same condition will hold true in Great Britain and on the Continent.

Unfilled Orders of Fairbanks Increase

Minnesota Power Revenues Larger

New York, July 31—Eastern Minnesota Power Corp., a subsidiary of Peoples Light & Power Corp., reports gross revenues of $306,285 for the year ended June 30, 1930, against $276,657 for preceding 12 months. Operating expenses, maintenance and taxes, other than federal income tax, totaled $154,800, against $153,992. Gross income amounted to $151,485, against $122,665 for the year ended June 30, 1929.

Domestic Bonds Are Sold Higher

New York, July 31—In contrast with the wide irregularity of bonds yesterday, today's trading brought some improvement in the trend, particularly in the domestic department. Small gains were registered by an assorted list of railroad, utility and industrial bonds. Foreign issues were generally steady.

RESERVE RATE CHANGE SEEN AS DISTANT

By W. S. COUSINS

New York, July 31—There will be no upward revisions of reserve bank rediscount rates for at least two months, that is until the latter part of September, according to the best financial viewpoint.

In the first place, the reserve bank authorities are definitely committed to an easy money policy as an aid to the business revival and in the second place, no jacking up of rates is needed as a "protection" against the exportation of gold or bank credits.

Since the early post-war days this country has worked in close co-operation with the leaders of European finance in an endeavor to stabilize financial and currency conditions in the monetary centers of Europe. A good many of the changes in the rediscount rates over the past two or three years have been made strictly in accordance with the carrying out of this policy of co-operation.

It is now believed that British and French dependence upon American financial markets will not be so acute in the future and that, therefore, American bankers will give greater consideration to strictly domestic financial and business affairs in determining rediscount rates and other important factors in the general money market.

The low rediscount rate, therefore, means nothing to the average borrower of bank funds.

Vick Financial

Vick Financial Corp. reports for six months ended June 30 net profit of $304,962 after expense and federal taxes.

NEWS OF MAJOR MARKETS

Trends of the Day — New York List

Bulls Win Back Ground in Trading in Wall Street

The bull group, feeling that it had gone too far to give up at this juncture, struggled to regain control of the price movement and managed to win back in the afternoon a substantial portion of the losses of the previous session.

BUSINESS TREND UP.

Yesterday's severe setback proved a keen disappointment to speculative quarters, but with reports that several industrial plants which have been closed for regular July shutdowns will resume operations within the next fortnight, many traders felt that, for the moment at least, the seasonal trend of business was more favorable to the bull than the bear cause.

Further flurries of selling had to be absorbed during the morning, but the fact that yesterday's break caused no heavy accumulation of selling orders at the opening was interpreted as indicating that stocks in the main are lodged with interests not easily stampeded.

The day's news was not wholly pleasing. Studebaker's second quarter statement showed net of only 41 cents, compared to $3.02 in the like period last year. Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh passed its $2 semi-annual payment due at this time, the first Class 1 railroad to take such action this year.

MONEY PLENTIFUL

Call money remained fairly plentiful, despite the approach of the August 1 settlements. During the next day or so, payments for the new American Telephone stock, as well as interest and dividend payment, will result in a turnover of about $600,000,000.

Despite recent loss of more than $40,000,000 in gold, however, the money market fails to show strain. Call loans renewed at 2 per cent, and there were some outside offerings at 1½.

Commission house sentiments was diverse and non-commital. The fact that the operators who have engineered the rally from the June lows have failed to attract a public following, and that they have failed to make notable progress since July 18, inspired considerable caution.

During the morning selling, losses of 1 to 3 points or more in several of the leading shares were numerous, but most of these were recorded before middav, as the list developed a firm tone.

Rails, however, were decidedly heavy, reflecting the B. R. & P. dividend omission. Missouri Pacific broke 6 points, and New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio and Baltimore & Ohio sagged 2 or more.

The Chicago and Alton issues sold up a little in response to announcement that Baltimore & Ohio was negotiating for the road, and Atchison & Southern railway reflected short covering.

Gillette and Autostrop were again strong, the last named reaching another new high. Gillette gained several points, as gossip regarding dissolution of a bear pool and possible acquisition of Autostrop, was again heard.

Such issues as du Pont, Byers, Worthington, Allied Chemical and Eastman gained 3 to 6 points or more.

American Can, Westinghouse Electric, Air Reduction Vanadium, U. S. Steel and American Telephone gained a point or two. Radio and General Motors moved narrowly.

Bullish operations in the afternoon were aided by the nervousness of the shorts, who began to bid for stocks when some of the leaders moved up sharply.

American Telephone, which had been down to 209¾ in the morning, rallied to above 213, and U. S. Steel came up from an early low of 163 to around 166.

Announcement of further gold imports and a cut in Studebaker dividend were ignored. The close was firm.

Steel Operations to Show Early Increase

There will be an early increase in steel operations and an improvement in the volume of bookings in the last quarter of 1930. This is the definite statement made by the finance committee of U. S. Steel. The membership of the committee is such as to lead to general acceptance of the statement, despite its seeming "denial" by the action of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. Professional traders, as usual, ruled transactions.

AMERICAN TOBACCO ORDERS $4 EXTRA

American Tobacco Co. declared an extra dividend of $4, in addition to regular quarterly dividend of $2 on the common and common B shares, both payable September 2 to stock of record August 9.

WAR CLOSED EXCHANGE JUST 16 YEARS AGO

Sixteen years ago today, the New York Stock Exchange closed as a result of the outbreak of the World War. At 10 minutes to 10, the board of governors decided on closing, and at 10 o'clock President Noble of the exchange appeared on the rostrum and rang the gong once for the opening, and again for the closing.

TRADERS ARE BUYING ON THE WEAK SPOTS

Less than a month ago, traders were selling on strong spots. Now they are buying on weak spots.

King Corn has the laugh on King Wheat, so it seems.

With call loans of $2,100,000 on June 30, compared with no call loans on corresponding date of last year, Hershey Chocolate must have a lot of money it doesn't know what to do with.

CALL MONEY RENEWAL RATE OFF IN JULY

Average call money renewal rate in July was 2.226 per cent, against 2.6 per cent in June and 9.06 per cent in July, 1929. July's average rate was the lowest monthly average since September, 1924, when the rate was 2.08 per cent. Highest renewal rate in July was 2½ per cent and the lowest 2 per cent, while the range for new loans was 3 per cent high, 2 per cent low. In July, 1929, call money ranged from 15 per cent high to 6 per cent low.

POOL IN VANADIUM SEEN LIQUIDATING

Vanadium Corporation was heavily sold by the bear group coincident with reports that the "pool" in the stock was trying to liquidate its position.

ADVICE TO INVESTORS IS FREE

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

CANNOT GUESS

E. W., Lawrence—I own fifty shares Gold Dust at 41 and twenty Irving Trust at 79. What is the outlook?

Ans.—If you mean the outlook for fluctuations, we can be of no assistance. You know as much about future prices as the next fellow. Earnings of $4.06 a share in 1929 cover the current $2.50 dividend on Gold Dust. In 1928 earnings were $3.71 a share, compared with $6.02 in 1927 on a smaller capitalization. A major part of the company's funded debt will be paid off before October 1, 1930. At recent levels the stock was around the price you paid. Irving Trust can pay the $1.60 a share annual dividend on the new stock, which compares with $14 paid on the old stock, prior to ten-for-one split in April, 1929. Recently, it was quoted about twenty-five points below your purchase price.

HAS A LOSS

J. H., Westfield—I own seventy-five shares Montgomery Ward at higher levels. Do you look for any advance?

Ans.—The advice you seek is distinctly outside our line. We do not believe anyone knows future prices. Though Montgomery Ward is the second largest factor in the mail order business, earnings of $2.50 a share in 1929 did not come up to the current $3 annual dividend rate, inaugurated November, 1929. From February, 1929, the new stock had been on a $2.50 a share annual basis. Sales for six months ended June 30 were $130,185,103 contrasted with $122,807,540 for similar period in 1929.

NO ADVICE

W. B., Rockland—I own some Simmons at 54. What is your opinion of it? Shall I sell at a loss?

Ans.—We should not care to be responsible for any loss you might sustain from a sale of Simmons Company. On the other hand, there is no assurance you can get what you paid for it. So far this year earnings have not been satisfactory. Though payments of $3 a share had been distributed from third quarter of 1928, quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share expected August 1 will be omitted. The stock is a speculation. The company is a large manufacturer of mattresses, beds and various types of furniture.

DON'T DISTURB

Miss M. F., Belmont—I own thirteen shares Pennsylvania Railroad and eight American Telephone & Telegraph. I have $1,500 in a savings bank, which I want to invest. What shall I buy?

Ans.—Don't disturb your fund. The sum of $1,500 is not too much for the savings bank. Give no further thought to the purchase of securities until you have $3,000. Then write to us again. The stocks you already have are sound. You can depend on the income.

LATEST EARNINGS

D. G., Middleboro—I own some Congoleum-Nairn bought a few years ago at higher levels. What are the latest earnings?

Ans.—For six months ended June 30 Congoleum-Nairn reported a net income equal to 40 cents a share, contrasted with 54 cents in the corresponding six months of 1929. Net for 1929 was $1.28 a share, compared with 83 cents in 1928. The company is the country's largest manufacturer of felt-base floor coverings. However, no dividend has been paid on the common stock since 1921. It is a sheer speculation. No one can predict future prices.

A GOOD RECORD

M. A., Taunton—I find your column interesting. What do you think of a purchase of New York Central?

Ans.—We would think well of it, provided you are content with a yield of about 5 per cent and would not use all your cash. New York Central has paid dividends since 1870. Not infrequently stockholders have received valuable "rights" for the acquisition of new stock. Current $8 rate has been paid since 1927. Net for 1929 was $16.89 a share, compared with $10.86 in 1928 and $13.90 in 1927 on a smaller amount of outstanding stock.

American Financial News

CURB MARKET PRICE CHANGES ARE NARROW

New York, July 31—The curb market steadied today after the vigorous selling that unsettled prices in the late dealings of Wednesday.

Opening quotations showed extremely small variations, and the market thereafter was subject to small movements in both directions, with trading dull most of the session.

A few of the utilities yielded a point or more in the minor declines of the forenoon, but pressure was only mild and the more active stocks displayed good recuperative powers when the selling relaxed.

American Gas &Electric yielded fractionally and then recovered briskly on a rally that carried it several points net higher. Electric Bond & Share turned over in large volume within a nominal price range.

Specialties were dull and somewhat heavy. Lerner Stores lost a few points and Ulen yielded moderately. Ford Motor of Canada "A," Crocker Wheeler, Walgreen and Cuneo eased.

Oil shares acomplished little. Vacuum replaced Cosden as the leader, rising more than a point. Humble and Cities Service were firm. Cosden sagged on profit-taking.

B. & O. MERGER MOVE ADMITTED

New York, July 31 (AP)—George M. Shriver, senior vice-president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, said today that negotiations for acquisition of the Chicago & Alton Railroad were being carried on, but no definite conclusions had been reached.

His statement was made in answer to reports current in Wall Street that the B. & O. had acquired control of the mid-west carrier through a third party, who had turned a majority of the bonds of the Chicago & Alton over to bankers for the B. & O.

The Chicago & Alton, which is valued at $100,000,000, has been in the hands of a receiver since 1922. It is a 1000-mile road serving the territory from Chicago south and southwest to St. Louis and Kansas City.

Building Awards Figures Are Given

Contracts let for new construction of all types in the 37 States east of the Rocky Mountains during the week from July 19 through July 25 were valued at $81,767,100, according to F. W. Dodge Corp. For July to date contracts aggregated $297,076,700. This was at a rate of $14,146,500 a business day, against $25,093,700 a business day in July, 1929. Since January 1 new construction undertaken in this territory was valued at $2,935,090,000, against $3,545,703,800 for the like period ended July 26, 1929.

Fairbanks Morse Report Is Given

Chicago, July 31—Fairbanks. Morse & Co. reports for six months ended June 30 net profit of $803,461 after depreciation, interest and federal taxes, equal, after preferred dividends, to $1.52 a share on the 368,977 no-par shares of common against $1,121,827, or $2.38 a share, in the first half of 1929.

Stock Dividend on Rustproof Ordered

Detroit, July 31—Parker Rustproof Co. declared stock dividend of 10 per cent on common and regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cents on the common, both payable August 20, to stock of record August 11. A similar stock dividend was paid on the common May 20 last.

Air Reduction's Assets Increase

Consolidated statement of Air Reduction Co., Inc., as of March 31, 1930, shows total assets of $33,403,716, against $31,461,523 on December 31, 1929, and surplus of $9,767,596, against $8,831,973. Current assets totaled $16,515,546 and current liabilities $1,260,108, against $14,789,262 and $1,096,005, respectively, on December 31, 1929.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

Letters from readers on current subjects are welcomed. Letters should not exceed 250 words in length, should be written on one side of the paper, and must bear the writer's name. Names will be omitted in publication, if requested. Address Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Hitch hikers should go. They hold up their fingers for a ride. They stand in the middle of the road and demand attention. Some call them "thumbers." They are getting more daring. Daily some of them stand in front of the State House, near Park st., and solicit pick-up rides from autoists.

In emergency cases it is different. You will find them along the roads at a good distance from cities. They have their thumbs up for a ride, but thumbs down should be given them. Brookline is after them.

She Favors Letting Men Do the Washing

Editor Boston American:

I think during the months of July and August, Saturdays, when many men get that day off, is a better day.

Washing is getting too hard for the average woman who takes care of the home and children. It needs the Herculean strength of the male to tackle washings every week. Saturday being the day off should be used doing the hardest part of the washing.

I know of one man who enjoys doing the weekly washing and he is a peach of a husband. But these samples of good will are not often found. I should be very gad to get rid of Monday as wash day. It came down from the Puritans as our minister said in his sermon. I like Saturday because on Sunday you can get a good rest. Monday is bargain day with me. I will not let anything interfere with that.

MRS. T. Y. L. McNALLY.

Old Boston Photos Show Ancient Practice

Editor Boston American:

I was just looking over some old papers and in one, The Evening Gazette, of Saturday, March 16, 1816, there is an account of them going to light one side of the Boylston Museum, Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings, to show the contrast between their new gas lights and argand lamps.

Admittance 26 cents.

And that was printed in your paper Monday, picture 319. They believed in advertising even in those days, but the business district has changed considerable and I guess the bob was the fashion in those days as an ad reads:

"Ladies' Hair Cut in the first style at the usual place in the rear of front shop"; and that was 73 Newbury st., opposite Lion and Lamb Taverns.

One of interested collectors of Old Boston Pictures.

MRS. F. E. TUCKER.
Arlington Heights.

Belmont Knights Thank American

Editor Boston American:

I am taking this opportunity on behalf of the Knights of Columbus of Belmont to extend to you our sincere appreciation for the co-operation you extended to us the night before the Fourth, by your donation of the special edition for Belmont. The public patriotic meeting and Tercentenary celebration was a great success.

JOSEPH P. DROLET,
Recorder.

Declares Prayer and Hate Do Not Mix

Editor Boston American:

Don't mix prayer with hatred. You can never stir them into one mixture. This is what Dr. Frick, the Facist minister of education for Thuringia, attempted to foist upon the public schools of that country.

"I believe that thou wilt punish the betrayal of Germany and bless the action of those who seek to free the fatherland."

The German supreme court of Leipsig declared this prayer unconstitutional. The prayer referred to former President Wilson's "fourteen points" with which Germany was betrayed. For goodness sake, bury the hatchet!

Prefers Old System of Traffic Control

Editor Boston American:

I find as in observing pedestrian that the new system of lights for traffic does not compare with the other system as regards foot traffic. It is very evident the people are confused, do not know when to start to cross the street and oftentimes are caught half way across when they find autos bearing down upon them and have narrow escapes. My observations are at such corners as Summer, Winter and Washington sts.

It certainly was premature to remove the officers at such places. It seems the only purpose was to speed up traffic and take all restraint from careless drivers and remove the only restraining hand, the officer of the law, from such reckless drivers.

When a driver is in a hurry an officer's raised hand or his whistle would stop him and he knew he had to be careful or suffer the consequences. Now when he has the right of way he plunges through regardless, eager to get to the next light before it turns against him.

An officer in a box restrains him and gives the foot pedestrians a chance. If it is bad now what will it be when the fall travel commences. Why you will have to have a whole squad of police at some points to prevent people from being run down.

As I understand no complaints were made about the system we have had or that we have had any accidents at such crowded corners which is a wonderful record. Why change to something not so good. Now if you want the pedestrian more confused put a gong at every corner which will be the limit. They will not know what it is all about. Put back the restraining arm of the law and let us have safety first.

Calls Garrett Case Disgrace to Police

Editor Boston American:

We wish to voice our opinion on the Garrett case. We are ashamed of our police department who will give Garrett a chance to remain a fugitive from justice so long. They know where he is, but they don't want to get him. Garrett threatened to blow the lid off the Boston police department and they are afraid of him.

That "Go Get Garrett" stuff is a lot of bunk. Men who were less known to our policemen than Garrett have been captured when wanted. A man as well known to our police as Garrett could not very well elude the police.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

One of the outstanding features of Boston's great Tercentenary celebration, and one which will undoubtedly spread the gospel of New England through the length and breadth of our country more thoroughly than has any other of this summer's events will be the gigantic national radio broadcast, which is to be presented in the interest of the annual National Convention of the American Legion to be held here in October.

This ambitious country-wide hook-up bids fair to be the greatest ever attempted in the annals of radio, the estimated cost of which broadcast, according to Legion officials, will be upwards of $100,000, the cost of wire charges alone being approximately $25,000.

This broadcast will be staged through the co-operation of leading broadcasting companies through the country on Thursday night, September 18, and at which time President Herbert Hoover and ex-president Calvin Coolidge, together with lesser political luminaries and Legion leaders will speak.

According to plans, Faneuil Hall, "The Cradle of Liberty," will be the principal studio, but cut-ins will be made from other places of historical interest in this city, which will include Bunker Hill Monument, Dorchester Heights and the tower of the Old North Church.

Various parts of the program will be broadcast from 12 widely separated places in nine different states from the Atlantic to the Pacific The feature of the program will be the singing from several large groups of Legionnaires who will broadcast the Legion song of their own state.

There are 17,300 local posts and units of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, comprising a membership of approximately 1,250,000, thus providing for the biggest assured radio audience ever gathered together. It is estimated that there will be a radio audience of 50,000,000.

PIGEON DID NOT SHOW WHITE FEATHER

"Molly Pitcher," United States Army homing pigeon, is a hospital patient at Fort Monmouth, N. J., after having been listed as A. W. O. L. for four weeks. This news was broadcast by the Good News Magazine of the air over WBZ-WBZA recently.

The pigeon, which has been a winner in many races, was sent, on June 21st, to Chattanooga, Tenn., and for some time no news had come of her to Fort Monmouth, although she was considered one of the fort's most dependable birds. Then a telegram came through from Camp Dix, N. J., saying that a wounded carrier pigeon had been found, walking between the tents, but unable to fly. She apparently had been attacked by a hawk. Kind hands took her to the veterinary hospital where she is recovering.

There's a good United States soldier for you.

The other day we published a single column cut of a very attractive young lady attired in a scanty bathing suit, standing in the surf at Atlantic City and apparently talking into a microphone which she was holding. The cut line on the photograph we had said she was a beauty contest winner. It isn't to be doubted, she looked like a winner.

Now we have received word that the "Breaking of the Waves" broadcast, through the Columbia System, which the charming young lady was aiding in broadcasting, has met with splendid success; is, in fact, a very popular feature.

Machine guns rattle, villians chortle and all's noisy on the CBS front tonight at 9:30 when "Nick Carter" and his chums gather round WNAC to present the first of a series of dramatic detective stories which are based on the thrillers and chillers taken from Detective Story Magazine. The first offering is called "The Serpent Stings," so take a heart stimulant and listen.

A violin, a guitar and a mezzo-soprano voice will do heavy duty tonight over WBZA at 9:30 when the Maxwell House program presents three guest stars. The owner of the voice is Elizabeth Sheridan who will donate "Fairy Story of the Fire" to the audience. Joe Venuti will saw at the violin and Ellie Lang will pick his guitar to the tune of "Pretty Tricks." Willard Robinson, director of the ensemble, will sing one of "Mr. St. Louis Blues'" numbers, "Yellow Dog," the misconstrued number which tells not of mongrel hounds but of unrequited love. "I Got Religion" has been dressed up in modern clothes and will be offered by the Maxwell singers.

He who says there is nothing new under the sun may be right, but we would oppose a similar remark about what goes on under the water. Radio's latest stunt is broadcasting beneath the waves, and no submarine is included in the paraphernalia. WPG in Atlantic City has acquired a sea-diving announcer who dons a microphone attached inside his helmet. From Davy Jones' Locker he tells the world what's going on down below.

They yawned when he first sat down to write a book, but their yawns soon changed to applause when he wrote "Moby Dick." Such is the story of Herman Melville, whose confidence in himself brought him fame only when he was an old man. Tonight on the Arco Birthday Party from WEEI at 9 o'clock he will be the reincarnated guest of honor. The musical program is a varied one, including the lesser known work of Tschaikowsky, "Pilgrim's Song"; the tongue twister, "Lazy Levee Loungers," and the Hawaiian "Aloha Oe."

PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

W. W. Lufkin, collector of the port, has departed from all precedents in appointing a woman as an acting deputy collector of customs.

Next Monday, Mrs. Mary E. Mitchell of Medford, secretary to Mr. Lufkin, will leave for Martha's Vineyard. She will be deputy collector of this "one-man port" for three weeks, during the vacation of Deputy Howes Norris.

This is the first time that a woman has ever been given this honor in the New England district. Usually a man chief clerk or some similar official is sent to fill in for vacations, but Collector Lufkin believes in recognition of ability, no matter where found. Mrs. Mitchell has been in customs work for nearly a score of years and is considered very competent.

OLDEST CHANDLER

Who is the oldest ship chandler in the harbor?

We have received a suggestion that we find out who is dean of these men who serve the incoming ships. The first nomination at hand is that of Edward K. Parker, who has been a ship chandler for nearly half a century.

WOOD PULP MOVES

The customs department in Washington has finally ordered the release of the woodpulp held in Boston harbor pending the "convict labor" dispute. Collector W. W. Lufkin recommended to Washington that this be done, as he felt that holding the cargo was inflicting demurrage costs.

Part of the cargo unloaded in Portland had been released, and he felt that Boston should have similar treatment. Some 70 carloads were unloaded here, from the Herakles. This final settlement of this situation is pleasing to a majority of harbor business men, who were also glad to read of the government's new stand that the United States must not discriminate against Russian goods merely for political or religious reasons.

IRVING APPOINTED

Andrew B. Sides will retire today as vice-president of the Eastern Steamship lines after 28 years of service. His successor is William K. Irving who has had 27 years of steamship service. This includes time with the Metropolitan lines, which later merged with the Eastern. During the war period he was with the U. S. Shipping Board and later with the Coastwise Transportation Company.

L. H. Wakefield has been named superintendent of terminals and J. C. Gray, Jr., will become agent of lines, east of Boston.

FAST RUN

The twin-screw British motor vessel Prometheus arrived in the harbor yesterday from the Dutch East Indies, making a fast run from Batavia since June 24. Another British steamer, the Merauke, which left Batavia a week ahead of the motor vessel, arrived in Boston only half a dozen hours earlier.

DROPS BONDED BUSINESS

Because of lessening of business due to the tariff situation, the Bay State Shipping Company has announced its plan to give up bonded warehousing after today. A similar condition exists for many concerns along the Atlantic coast.

The decision to abandon the bonded business was entirely voluntary, according to Collector W. W. Lufkin, and has no relation to the present investigation of the Army Base Terminal ordered by Mayor Curley to the Port Authority.

The Collector said that special Treasury department agents had recently made an investigation of circumstances surrounding bonded warehousing at the Army Base and their findings will be given to the Port Authority to determine if the facts are pertinent to the present probe.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's harbor sketch is Capt. Irving G. Hall, Jr., vice-president of John G. Hall & Co., oldest concern of its kind in Boston.

Capt. Hall's father started the business nearly a century ago. The concern has the agency of a score of local and foreign lines.

"Junior" won his rank of captain during the war. He enlisted at the start and was with the French for nearly four years, transferring to the A. E. F. later. His captaincy is in the reserves.

This resident of Lexington is married and has two lively children. He is a graduate of M. I. T., and active in the Maritime Association, the City Club and the Foreign Commerce Club. He is a believer in booming the port through passenger and freight travel by way of Boston.

His hobbies are fishing, shooting, football and wrestling. While in school he was a good football player and an expert amateur wrestler. He holds the company record of visiting the German line ships while in port, as he hasn't missed meeting any of that line in years.

BOSTONIANS AFLOAT

On the Fabre liner Patria, sailing from Commonwealth Pier for Portugal, Italy and other ports were Miss Margaret Jackson of Boston, Rev. A. P. Santos of Fall River, Dr. Emanuel Macalus of Boston.

The North German Lloyd liner Bremen, due in New York tonight or early tomorrow from Bremen, Southampton and Cherbourg, has many Bostonians on board.

Among the passengers are: Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop F. Barden of Newton, Miss Martha Wentworth and Miss Priscilla Wentworth of Watertown, Nathan Herwandter of Gardner, George C. Wood of Brockton.

Those from Boston are: Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cameron Bradley, Montgomery S. Bradley, Scott Brent, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hammond, John A. Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Welch, Mr. and Mrs. E. CURIOUS CREATURES

By RICHARD A. ADDISON

Doubling for Love

She let go this dream with a little shiver. Dreams! Plenty of those all her life. The unknown ahead looked like many a one before—sometimes like many made into one. The Prince of Wales, Jack Gilbert, Col. Lindbergh. Now he was different.

"Must be the sea air," she told herself. And ordered ice cream when she wanted coffee.

"Sorry, Betsy. Can't stay awake."

"Meet a lot of good scouts, Ju. And she's regular folks if she does wear cheaters. Well, save tomorrow night. And don't do half that I'd do."

Their laughter followed Judy, set her cheeks burning, as she followed Peggy to the music room. But she was not angry.

For the first time she wondered about Betsy Rowe—felt a shade of envy. Pleasant to let yourself go like Betsy did, forget that some day you meant to be a college professor and that you must live up to it.

Later the thought that she could slip into such a state of mind frightened her and she hurried up to A deck and crept into bed. The bed was like a cradle gently rocked by waves; with a strange new sense of happiness Judy fell asleep.

She awakened early, lay with her eyes closed, wondering what had happened. Memory came slowly — the ship, the sea. The feeling of sparkles running through her veins.

She dashed to the window, looked out upon a wavering stretch of silver beneath an upturned turquoise bowl. No land anywhere — only a greyish shadow — a thin, gray line far away which would be the horizon. It was a perfect curve she never before had guessed that the horizon was a circle—not just a straight line— and the knowledge filled her with excitement.

Never had she dressed so swiftly; never before had she caught up her hair without bothering to smooth it. She snatched Peggy's orange scarf, tied it loosely over her head.

The air was champagne and crystal and the wind was a chuckle which whipped the scarf to orange streamers behind her head and reddened her cheeks. She ran along the deck to the bow, stood there laughing, a graceful, vivid little figure.

She was so exultant that she did not see a tall man who watched a while before he stepped up in a lazy way, turned his back to the rail to he faced her instead of the sea.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

House Cleaning Needed

It Is Time for Our Government to Protect Itself Against Undesirable Aliens

Good housekeepers wage ceaseless war against vermin, and employers will not have dishonest people about them.

The Government of the United States should clean house and get rid of undesirable HUMAN vermin. If any law is lacking to facilitate the operation, such a law should be provided.

No man keeps in his own house those that are enemies of his family or for any other reason harmful.

Our own undesirables and unusable native born are sufficiently numerous. For those we must provide, in or out of prison.

There is no earthly reason why undesirable ALIENS should be tolerated, or allowed to remain in this country.

This newspaper reflects the opinions of its readers when it advocates the passage of a law providing for the deportation of all aliens—UNDESIRABLE, FOR WHATEVER SOUND REASON.

Aliens engaged in pernicious activity of any kind, with any criminal record, with taint of disease, or narcotic addiction, should be returned to their respective countries.

Conviction of crime should be followed by deportation following punishment, with all possible precautions such as finger printing, photographing, etc., to prevent return.

It might, in that event, be possible to establish some resort on this continent, preferably far North, where undesirables could learn to work, and take a serious view of life and act as a warning to undesirables against coming to this country.

Also, this newspaper advocates laws that would make United States citizenship more difficult to obtain.

At present any politician gathering together "a bunch of foreigners" that will later obey his orders on Election Day can have them made into American citizens, briefly and simply, thus benefiting his organization, but not the nation.

Requisites for United States citizenship should be CHARACTER, WILLINGNESS AND ABILITY TO WORK, AND GOOD, SOUND INTELLIGENCE AND COMMON SENSE.

It should not be necessary for the would-be citizen to write a dissertation on the Constitution of the United States.

But it should be necessary for him to prove that he possesses the material of which good citizens are made.

Admission to this country and to citizenship has been too free and easy.

It is time for our Government to protect itself against the vicious and criminal, the incompetent and the unfit.

Routing Stock Swindlers

American's Campaign Bringing Results

If anybody doubts the extent of stock swindling in Boston and New England, or the service performed to investors by exposing swindlers, the early results of the Boston Evening American stock fraud campaign will convince him.

In the two weeks of the crusade to date more than a thousand complaints have poured into the Boston Evening American office.

A hundred or more companies have been investigated or are still under investigation.

Prosecutions by the Attorney-General's office have been started, and the campaign has just gotten underway.

And literally millions of dollars that otherwise would have been lost in fake concerns have been kept in the channels of legitimate business or placed in savings banks or other forms of secure investment.

This newspaper is pleased to have been of service in restoring money to owners where the money was still obtainable, and in giving others financial and legal advice as to the status of their claims. Most of the "investments," unfortunately, had gone beyond a chance of recovery, but some have been salvaged.

No one can read the queries and articles published in the Boston Evening American's news columns without learning a lesson from others' misfortunes and avoiding the mistakes that others have made.

Any legitimate broker or banker will gladly give advice to the prospective investor.

INVESTIGATE before you INVEST.

Closing Our Beaches

Public's Rights Must Be Protected

The arbitrary closing of several Massachusetts beaches against the public has reached the stage of an irritating epidemic.

Wealthy owners of fine estates in Nahant have taken a leaf from the book of their exclusive neighbors in Marblehead. With the result that the humble people find fences erected against them and their entry to the beaches they had enjoyed for years effectively blocked.

The attitude of the selectmen of Nahant is the saving grace in the situation to date. Unlike the lassitude of the Marblehead taxpayers, they will go to the courts in order that all the public rights may be fully protected and in the hope that the generous gifts of nature shall not be limited to the enjoyment of a few financial aristocrats.

The Butler Campaign

W. I. Annoys William M.

Mr. William M. Butler complains with indignation that a person named W. I. Butler is being entered into the Republican campaign for United States Senator. Butler, No. 2, it seems, is a former prizefighter whose sole experience has been in the arena of fisticuffs, not of politics, and whose main asset is the similarity of his name to that of the former Senator. It is a shabby trick, rather motheaten. The voters of Massachusetts like their fights, but they want them free from the practices which can serve only to bring disrepute to their authors.

TOO GOOD NATURED

There has been too much reckless miscalled "hospitality" in the United States, too much tolerating of undesirables.

GOOD immigration is, and always has been, the life of the nation. BAD immigration is poison. (See Editorial).

The Shame of the Pinthis

Tardy Decision to Raise Bodies

Forced by the vigorous campaign of the Boston Evening American the steamship corporations involved in the Fairfax-Pinthis disaster have at last decided to attempt the recovery of the 17 bodies of the crew of the sunken tanker. For 50 days these bodies have lain on the cold bed of the Atlantic off Scituate.

WHILE the United States Navy proclaimed it was NOT its duty to recover them.

WHILE the United States Coast Guard insisted it was NOT equipped with the adequate diving facilities to attempt their recovery.

WHILE the Bureau of Navigation of the United States Department of Commerce explained that the matter was NOT within its jurisdiction.

WHILE the State of Massachusetts stood like a casual spectator on the coast, raising neither its voice in protest nor its hand in relief.

WHILE the private steamship lines involved in the miserable Fairfax-Pinthis disaster, the insurance companies and the boards of underwriters for 50 days swelled the chorus of disgusting buckpassing and of defiant unconcern.

WHILE the women and children mourned the loss of their unfortunate men, contemplated the cruel disregard of their sorrow by the private steamship agencies and the inhumanity of a government which was organized to bring quick relief to any and all of its people in sore distress but which actually presented the sorry spectacle of hiding behind silly technicalities to evade its plain duty in the interest of humanity.

Congressman John W. McCormack was quoted in the columns of this newspaper as saying that if these unfortunate men were of the social elite, if they possessed either political or financial prestige, their bodies would not have been permitted to lay an hour; that the steamship officials and the government payroll patriots would have moved heaven and earth to recover them.

This decision to recover the bodies, though tardy, has now been made. Otherwise the storm of protest and of public disgust which beat down on them would have attained the proportions of a gale.

Cutting Fire Hazards

Insurance Companies Benefit, Too

The city of Boston decides to unite with the insurance companies in a new and aggressive campaign to eliminate the fire hazards. And Mayor Curley quite properly contends that the expenses of it should not be borne by the citizens affected without deriving compensatory returns from it.

Older buildings are to be surveyed for the purpose of requiring the installation of adequate fire sprinkler systems in them. Elevator shafts are to be so equipped. And property must be overhauled in order to conform to the most approved methods of supplying protection against incendiarism and the accidental fire as well.

Now, the purpose of this campaign is above reproach. The fire losses we suffer are wasteful, are staggering in amount and are a sorry testimonial to the carelessness of a people who boast of their efficiency.

But the Mayor complains that the progressive improvements of the past, including the establishment of the vaunted high-pressure water system in the heart of the city, have rarely, if ever, producted resultant decreases in the insurance rates.

The insurance companies cannot have their cake and eat it, too. They should be quick to respond with the promise that the fire losses will be reduced in proportion to the expenses to which the citizens are subjected or in proportion to the savings which will accrue to the companies.

CONGRESSMAN John Garner's scheme for dividing Texas into a number of states must be nipped right now in the well-known bud—suppose there were five Ma Fergusons?

HERBERT HOOVER sure does stand by those who stand by him—he indorses Congressman Reed's stand against government ownership at Muscle Shoals, even though in order to do it he has to repudiate Herbert Hoover's 1928 campaign speeches in Tennessee.

MR. HOOVER, solves the unemployment problem by appointing another government commission.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Pass It On!

"I THINK you write a wonderful column," says she, "and I'm so grateful to you for it."

You needn't be, lady. I don't write this column. Life writes it. I'm just a sort of receiving and broadcasting station for a million other folks' wave lengths and static. You shouldn't be grateful to me. But no one but myself and God knows what infinite reason I have to be grateful to you. For there isn't a second of the day that I'm not getting something from somebody. And if I worked for an eternity, I never could repay the debt I owe.

Elsie Robinson

In a way, all jobs are a gift. A chance to get in on the Big Game. But I doubt if any other worker gets quite as much out of his job—or owes as much for it—as a columnist. Friendliness and understanding—how you've given it to me all these years, my dears! And comfort and encouragement when I thought I couldn't go on for another day—

Criticism, too. And many a good bawling out. That's perhaps an even more valuable gift. For I do write the most foolish things at times! And I suspect it's good for my soul to be told frequently that I'm a pain in the neck.

"Pooh!" some cynic will say, "people write you letters like that on the chance of seeing their name in print. Just looking for publicity—that's all."

Guess again, stranger! Never a day but some unsigned letter comes to this desk—some tired woman, some busy man, taking time off to wish me well, telling me to go on. Never a day but a hand reaches out in the dark and grips me when I'm stumbling.

Call that "looking for publicity?" Then you're a pretty poor judge of livestock, bo! No, man, it's a gift—the greatest gift on earth.

And how can I pay for that gift? I can't.

The debt I owe you—always it goes on, mounting and mounting. Every laugh and every tear and every dream you share with me adds to that debt. And in a way—that's true of all of us.

All that we have is somebody's gift to us.

The streets we walk on — the cities we live in—the tools we use—the clothes we wear—

The books we read—the songs we hear—the pictures we see—

Yes, even more than this—the standards we live by, and the heroic goals to which we aspire—they are all gifts. They are all stained with the sweat of other men—and quick with their tears and hopes.

Everything in the man-made world is the gift of other men now living or long dead. They have left us a very great gift and a very great debt—

And there is only one way in which we can pay that debt. We can only pay for our GETTING by GIVING.

If there's Beauty in your life or Honor or Courage or Wisdom or Wit or anything fine or serviceable—PASS IT ON. Pass it on to others as it was passed on to you.

H. G. Wells Writes

THE PLASTIDS' reproduction has no relation to the rhythm of division and growth in the cell that contains them, and during the tumult of cell-division they are swept at random; some into one daughter-cell and some into the other. It has even been suggested that these plastids are organisms, independent lives within the cells, just as the algae in a lichen are captive lives within a larger organism; but nobody has yet isolated a plastid and seen it grow apart from the containing cell.

H. G. Wells

These plastids, then, are the bearers of chlorophyll from a cell to its daughter cell, and it is because of their presence in the seed that a plant inherits its vital greenness from its parents.

Now in variegated plants like the Four-o'clock some of the plastids are abnormal and contain no chlorophyll, though behaving in all other respects like their green neighbors. And in their generations these plastids, these independently multiplying bodies inside the cell, breed true.

If a cell contains only green plastids, all the cells that proliferate from it will also contain green only. If it contains white plastids, all its descendants will be white and its proliferation will produce a white patch on the plant.

If a cell contains some of each they will be divided between the daughter-cells any old how; one may chance to get all the white and one all the green, and one will get a few white and a lot of green, and so on. There is little orderliness in his method of inheritance. From these facts one can infer the results of sexual and asexual propagation in the plants in question.

An egg cell, or a shoot from a "pure green" part of the plant, will itself be pure green; one from a "pure white" part will be pure white; one from a mixed part may be anything.

Cementing Relations -:- By Arthur Baer

Flagpoles are no longer the big things in the lives of great idiots. Shipwreck Kelly sat on a pole until he wore it down to a toothpick.

McIntyre Abroad

By O. O. McINTYRE

Doorn—This is the sleepy Holland village that became a conspicuous first page date-line when Kaiser Wilhelm suddenly gave up kaisering to chop wood and grow pretty flowers. It crawls about a small triangular park with a proud, ancient elm in its center. Circling the elm is a wooden bench.

Drowsing on the bench were village loafers gazing at passing motorists with that bland air of Dutch detachment so frequently mistaken for dumbness. Far off floated the dolorous sing. soom, sing of a blacksmith anvil. Blue-bottle flies buzzed in the gutters of the cobbled street. Life had the scum of stagnation.

• • •

Yet Doorn was charged with something electric. The inhabitants have that tranquillity of those who live on the edge of a crater. Every stranger is eyed as though secretly suspected of an important mission. Mysterious cars with goggled strangers whisk in and out from Germany. Doorn is always "expecting something."

In a brash moment I sent a note to the kaiser's secretary asking for an audience with the royal exile. I had no credentials, as the trip here was a last moment whim. I could only refer them to their copy of "Who's Who in America." I did not expect a reply. It was a wild chance, impulsively taken.

• • •

The courier returned, however, with a courteous reply. The Kaiser Wilhelm and Kaiserin, as Holland knows them, had motored to a neighboring village to spend the day. This was later verified by a cafe waiter who has seen them pass. "He loom hera for sin glass of bier sometimes," he added.

The reply invited members of the party to see the Kaiser's rosarium, a large garden adjoining his forested privacy. The rosarium is a triumph of floral culture with a background of linden trees. We passed the big tree with the white bench where the Kaiser has been seen in movie news reels.

• • •

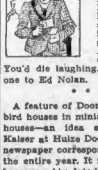
After completing the rosarium, he presented it as his grateful gift to the village of Doorn for furnishing him his Holland refuge. He walks there daily with his little black dog. At 71 his step is firm. It is whispered that often in early hours with binoculars he gazes from a tower window toward the Fatherland. And sighs.

• • •

Huize Doorn, the estate of the ex-war lord, is a three-minute walk from the mid-town square—a square with a cafe, seamstress, parlor, drugstore, tinsmith, bank and brick Lutheran church. Once the most hated man in the world, the Kaiser lives apparently unafraid. There are no high walls or embattled towers. Only a fragile wire netting surrounds his acres. He walks to the village alone. Children adore him, but they tell of a peaceful dog that growls savagely only at the Kaiser's cane.

• • •

Doorn is an aristocratic village, reminding of Hastings-on-Hudson. Old residents resent curiosity seekers and have enclosed their homes behind high hedges. Guides are not permitted. The most conspicuous establishment is a postcard shop selling cards of the Kaiser and his home. There is always a waiting line. I sent a dozen myself. And such comical comments! You'd die laughing. Especially the one to Ed Nolan.



• • •

A feature of Doorn are side yard bird houses in miniature of the big houses—an idea started by the Kaiser at Huize Doorn. A group of newspaper correspondents are here the entire year. It may over night become a big date-line again.

• • •

We left Doorn to cross the border at Emmerich. Will Hogg and I got out to stretch our legs and in a few shakes of my dog's tail—if he had one—we were over the line and in Germany. And I'll bet a crumpet the Kaiser would give two marbles and a skipping rope to be with us.
